Two California Surprises
Disgraceful Caricature
A Four Day Week
Royal Betrothal.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

Surprises come from California. Senator Hiram Johnson, always hitherto elected on the Republican ticket, although not always a "regular" Republican, gets both the Democratic and Republican Senate nominations. Ordinarily that would be a nine days' wonder.

But Upton Sinclair, a genuine "always was, always will be" radical, is not only nominated for governor by the Democratic party of California, but nominated by the "largest primary vote ever given by that party in California." His overwhelming nomination will make conservatives thoughtful. Mr. Sinclair promises, when elected governor, to pardon Mooney, serving a life sentence for murder, and Mr. Sinclair has many other plans to disturb the conservatives. For instance, if the owners of factories can't make them pay, he will take them over and the state will work them, giving jobs to the idle. It will also take over farms not profitable now, "facing sale for taxes," and let the unemployed work them.

If Mr. Sinclair carries out this plan he will learn various things, one of which is that when private enterprise cannot make a factory or farm pay, operation by politicians will not easily make the thing profitable.

However, the late Alfred Henry Lewis used to say that a political candidate is like a mule galloping around the pasture, threatening to kick everything to pieces. But "when he is between the shafts, in harness, he goes along quietly like any other mule."

So it is sometimes with candidates before and after election.

One caricature more or less makes no difference to the President, willing to let the people judge of such things. But, all concerned in that Westchester exhibition should be ashamed of their blackguardly conduct in permitting a caricature of the President's wife to be publicly exhibited. That had not been done hitherto in America.

Next week will be what those in favor of shorter hours would call "Ideal Week." Monday will be Labor Day, Saturday largely a day off. There will be only four real working days in the week. If only everybody were working and well paid Utopia would not be far away.

The court circular, read by every housemaiden in England says: "It is with the greatest pleasure that the King and Queen announce the betrothal of their dearly beloved son, Prince George, and Princess Marina, daughter of Prince and Princess Nicholas of Greece, to which union the King gladly has given consent."

This young couple, among the few remaining fragments of civilized royalty, may live to see many changes important to them. Prince George need never lose financially, at least. His present allowance of $50,000 a year may be increased to $75,000, but he could get more as a salesman over here, and earn it.

$450,000 of silver came from China last Tuesday, and that worries the Chinese. They haven't learned the art of making good paper money, or printing, on yellow paper, fiat bonds almost as pretty as solid gold. In one week Shanghai lost 37,900,000 ounces of silver.

Chief Max Bigman, of the Montana Crow Indians, took his wife, four little Indian sons, four little Indian daughters, close to the geysers, boiling pools and growling steam outlets, of Yellowstone Park. His ancestors never dared go near that fearful place. Chief Bigman says he wanted to cure his family of superstition. Some civilized fathers might follow that example.

Chancellor Hitler is said to have chosen Rudolf Hess to take his place in the event of death or illness. Stalin, Mussolini, Kemal Pasha, have made no such announcement.

But if they did make one it would not be important. It is easy to say: "This man shall succeed me," not so easy to make the people accept the chosen successor.

No man was more polite than

DEDHAM CHIEF LAYS OUSTER TO 'GOSSIP'

Far from having any intention of resigning, as demanded by the selectmen, Police Chief Harry R. Wragg of Dedham carried out his official duties as usual today and said he will demand a hearing tonight at the regular meeting of the selectmen.

He said today:

"Why should I resign until I am told what it is all about and I am given a chance to make a reply."

The chief maintained that no specific charge had been outlined to him in asking his resignation and he alleged that the whole case had grown out of "wagging tongues."

The selectmen's ouster order came as a surprise last night on the heels of the board's investigation of the suicide of Henry B. Horn, Jr., 32-year old janitor at the Dedham Savings Bank.

Horn died on August 13, and according to two bank officials, a note was found near the body that read:

"If I am a rat, this is the best way out."

An alleged motive for the suicide became common gossip in Dedham and the selectmen, acting within their province as police commissioners, began an investigation independent of the police department.

During this probe, Gordon C. Larcom, treasurer of the bank where Horn worked, and Don G. Hill, the bank's attorney, gave testimony of the suicide note, it is understood.

Meanwhile today, Mrs. Henry B. Horn, Jr., widow of the suicide, was absent from her home in Dedham, with the neighbors professing not to know where she has gone.

Following the suicide, she moved from High street to Harvard street, but today the latter house was quiet and with the curtains drawn.

Horn's foster parents, who have moved out of Dedham and who now live in Summit street, Hyde Park, denied themselves to all interviewers today. It was through them that the charges were made against Chief Wragg which resulted in the ouster order.

His Call Will Put Half-Million Out of Job

Francis Gorman, chairman of the strike committee of the United Textile Workers of America, as he telephoned the order that will cause 500,000 workers in the nation's cotton mills to quit their jobs. In New England the order affects 150,000 toilers. (Picture from Wide World Photograph Service.)

150,000 HERE WAIT CALL TO QUIT JOB

In this second of a series of articles showing the grasp of Communism on New England industry, the Boston Evening American reveals the beginning last spring of an organization drive in the ranks of textile workers at Lawrence and New Bedford.

What the Communist party has succeeded in doing in the textile centers, and the manner in which it has been done in preparation for the textile strike, is made clear in this and articles to follow.

This expose is based upon secret communiques of the Communist party leaders. The papers came into possession of the American from an authentic source which may not be disclosed. They reveal an amazingly efficient underground organization deliberately reaching for control of industry and, through industry, control of the government for establishment of a Communist America.

Secret orders issued by the Communist Party of the United States, reveal that control of the scheduled national textile strike will be the issue of a spectacular battle between Communism and the American Federation of Labor in New England.

Lawrence and New Bedford will be the principal battlegrounds.

Mills Lay Plans; President Is Last Hope

Orders sending more than half a million textile mill workers on a general strike throughout the country today were delayed without explanation by national headquarters of the United Textile Workers of America in Washington.

The order had been expected in Pawtucket, New England strike headquarters, by noon. But when it failed to arrive, Joseph Sylvia, strike organizer, declared that he still expected it during the course of the afternoon.

When the order does come, it will mean that more than 150,000 New England mill workers will be expected to quit their looms in the next 12 hours.

Only Roosevelt's Act Can Avert It

Only intervention by President Roosevelt can avert the walkout now, according to Sylvia. He regarded that as unlikely.

He was pushing preparations as though the strike order had already been received. A meeting of the representatives of Massachusetts and Rhode Island unions has been called for Saturday afternoon in Pawtucket. At the same time, the Connecticut locals are to meet at Dayville.

Plans for demonstrations, picketing and other strike activities are to be completed at these meetings, Sylvia said. In the meantime he was superintending the distribution of almost a ton of printed propaganda that has been received from national strike headquarters in Washington. These included booklets, broadsides and huge strike posters.

The first major strike demonstration in New England is to be a gigantic Labor Day parade in Providence, Sylvia said. Labor organizations throughout the six

SUMMER SKIDS; MERCURY AT 49

Summer (no foolin'; it is) appeared to be on the skids today when, after a night of temperatures in the 50s, the mercury in Boston's official glass dropped to 49.6 between 6 and 7 o'clock this morning.

It was the coolest day of an exceptionally cool August and the coolest of the summer. Likewise, it was the coolest August 30 in 22 years and the second coolest in weather bureau records. Lowest on record for the date was 49 in 1912.

Fourteen days of this dying August have been accompanied by temperatures in the 50s. The highest mark of the month was 86 and the highest of the summer 94, in June. It looks like a hard winter.

'Joan' Refuses to Apologize

By International News Service

New York, Aug. 30—Marie Louise Peck isn't apologizing for her Ste. Joan of Arc in a bathing suit. All that she wants to do is forget about it.

"There is no reason for any apology," said the mother of the 17-year-old girl whose undress depiction of the Maid of Orleans caused Sister Bertrand, superintendent of St. Joseph's Hospital, to refuse to accept a donation from the Atlantic Beach Club.

The money was raised at a pageant in which Miss Peck appeared in a bathing suit as Poan. Mrs. Graham Young, Miss Peck's mother said:

"There was nothing immodest about the costume. So far as the attitude of the hospital sisters is concerned, we can only say we are annoyed at the publicity."

RAINBOW LEADS YANKEE

By Associated Press

Aboard Coast Guard Cutter Dix, off Newport, Aug. 30—Rainbow and Yankee today were sent away at 10:40 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time) on another of the final trial series to select a defender of the America's cup against the British challenger Endeavour.

A 30-mile triangular course was ordered. A 14-knot breeze was blowing out of the north, northeast.

Rainbow, with Harold S. Vanderbilt at the wheel, led Yankee across the line by about a boat length and he and Charles Francis Adams, Yankee's skipper, then engagd in a luffing match as the boats bore away from the start.

Endeavour and the ineligible class J American yatch, Vanitie, also were out for an informal brush in the smart breeze.

Paris, Aug. 30 (INS)—Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt of New York and her sister, Lady Furness, arrived heretoday and are stopping in a fashionable hotel on the Place Vendome. Recent reports that Mrs. Vanderbilt would marry A. C. Bluementhal, New York theatrical producer, were emphatically denied by her.

Store Cancels $176,436 Bills

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 30—A New York department store announced in newspaper advertisements today it had cancelled customers' debts aggregating $176,436.88.

Earlier this week the firm said it would discontinue all dividends for one year in order to lower prices and stimulate buying.

The announcement today said:

"Several thousand people owe us for debts incurred on time payments before this store went on a cash basis two years ago.

"To them we say: 'Forget it! There's a new deal. You owe us nothing.'

"To that $176,436.88 we formally and finally relinquish all claims."

centration of Communist energy took place in compliance with orders of the national party several months ago.

Six Lawrence mills were selected as concentration points and specified in code in the secret orders, with the Young Communist League designated to carry out the organization in three mills.

In Every Mill Center They Seek Control

A similar plan was worked out for New Bedford for the assistance of the National Textile Workers Union. In each case the issues upon which the Communists were to concentrate for fomenting dissatisfaction were named.

In Salem, Manchester, N. H., Providence and Pawtucket, R. I., and other textile centers, the Communists will also seek control of the workers who may be called out by the United Textile Workers of America.

How Communism feeds on strikes, by whomever called, is revealed in a secret Control Plan for the New England district of the Communist Party.

How Communism plans to participate in the textile crisis is disclosed in the same Control Plan.

Since last March, the secret communiques make clear, the Communist party, working through the National Textile Workers' Union and other associated organizations, has been reaching for a throttle hold on the textile channels through which flow the life-blood of New England industry.

Whether that grasp has been attained, the scheduled strike may prove. Evidence of the astounding organization efforts to get it is startlingly clear in the secret orders.

It was on March 24 last that the Communist party surveyed its growth in the New England textile field and found the progress made to have been unsatisfactory. A secret message to Communist leaders of the First (New England) district stated:

Seek Link to Stir Masses Into Action

"There are possibilities . . . of widespread strikes in textile.

"Although our Party and union in Lawrence have carried on consistent work, made an effective exposure of the cotton and woolen codes, have organized a number of minor department struggles in the mills and were able last summer to bring about a 12½ per cent increase for the workers through threat of strike, we have not yet succeeded in finding the link that will bring the masses into motion in Lawrence.

"In New Bedford where a number of department strikes took place in various mills, last summer, we were not able to break the influence of the UTW (Ed note: United Textiles Workers) and prevent their sell-out maneuvers.

"While our union led three successful strikes in Providence last fall, we were unable after the strike to keep the mills organized in the face of the victimization and blacklist of the mill owners.

"In the Salem strike the workers won a complete victory as a result of our guidance and participation. But while we succeeded in breaking away the Salem union from the UTW, while our exposure helped in the breaking away of the Pawtucket independent union from the UTW, and while we have so far prevented the UTW from securing any influence or organization in Lawrence, we have not succeeded as a result of these struggles in consolidating our own influence among the textile workers in these important centers."

Open Letter Urges Drive on Key Unions

Leaders at the national conference of the Communist party then directed a secret order to New England district leaders in a communique called The Open Letter.

Its contents are best made clear in the orders which it inspired the New England district leaders to issue to its local branches, in part as follows:

"The Open Letter calls upon us

"(a) Through a policy of concentration to root the party and the revolutionary trade unions in the most decisive shops and industries;

"(b) To develop a mass campaign for social and unemployment insurance;

"(d) To develop new cadres (Ed-Note—Framework organizations endowed with Communistic principals), and establish real collective work.

"In order to realize those tasks we propose . . . to concentrate on the textile industry, and secondly on the shoe industry as the two decisive industries in New England; on the textile industry to concentrate on Lawrence, the woolen center, and as a secondary concentration point, New Bedford, the cotton center."

Fight Against NRA Says Secret Order

"In Lawrence we propose the following: (Ed. Note: Mills designated are in the Communist code numbers) Mill 1 to be the concentration mill, to organize the present membership on a shop nuclei basis in Mills 2, 3, 4 and 5. To establish a nucleus in Mill 1 and to make functioning nuclei in the four mills where we have members; to establish Young Communist League nucell in Mills 2, 4 and 6 where we have YCL members."

From that point the orders went on to outline the method of organization, as follows:

"1. The struggle against the National Recovery Act and the Woolen Code. To raise the issues of specific decreases in speedup and specific increases in wages for those receiving more than the minimum, as well as immediate enforcement of the minimum for those receiving less.

Seek To Popularize Job Insurance Plan

"2. Through the struggle against night work for women, working up to the slogan of stoppages, refusing to work after 6 p. m.

"3. To initiate and relentlessly follow up every kind of department struggle around department grievances.

"4. To raise the issue of providing jobs by cutting speedup together with further popularization of the unemployment insurance demand as raised in our Woolen Code—in the first place at Mill 4.

"5. To publish with unfailing regularity a weekly mill bulletin of at least two pages for the concentration mill.

"6. To organize a workers' advisory committee for the Daily Worker to broaden the sale of the daily at the mill gates, in the lunchroom, house to house, and through a literature and Daily Worker stand."

(Further details of the Control Plan under which the Communist Party has organized for trouble in the textile centers will be printed in tomorrow's article.)

"What's the use of being snobbish?" With this smiling remark, Mrs. Ottolie Gobel Moore, heiress to a $3,000,000 fortune left by her father, the "hot-dog king," explained the twisted arrangements of her trip home from Europe. It seems she and her daughter travelled third class while their pet dog, "Pansy," crossed the ocean in style, a first-class passenger. Mrs. Moore's fare was $118, the dog's $201. "It's the depreciated dollar," she explained. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

DOG MAKES SEA TRIP IN STYLE

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 30—Mrs. Ottolie Gobel Moore, daughter of the late Adolf Gobel, meat packer and "Hot dog king" came back from Europe third class—but her dog travelled first class.

While Mrs. Moore, her five year old daughter Dede, a maid and fifteen trunks sat below, the dog "Pansy" occupied a kennel on the top deck, where a valet was in attendance with fancy biscuits, cream chicken and other delicacies.

Mrs. Moore's fare was $118; the dog's $201. It was the depreciated dollar, Mrs. Moore explained, that necessitated the saving. They arrived yesterday from the south of France on the Conte Di Savoia.

POLICE TO JOIN TAGS, MERCY

Justice — although oponents of Boston's latest tagging law call it anything but—must be tempered by mercy, police heads decided today as they took counsel on how to administer the new 3-5-10 parking edict.

The result of the conference was reported in the proposed establishment of a "double standard."

Persons who are flagrant violators will be sent to court to pay the assessment.

Cartoon of Roosevelts Draws Poison Pen Notes

By International News Service

New York, Aug. 30—Poison pen letters poured in today on promoters of the Westchester Institute of Fine Arts exposition at Tarrytown as ardent supporters of the New Deal openly threatened to "tear the place apart" unless a mural caracature of President Roosevelt's family is withdrawn.

Department of Justice agents took a hand in the situation, but after casting unprofessional — but none the less critical—eyes on the painting they made no effort to have it removed from the exhibition.

Meanwhile, the anonymous artist who painted the mural was informed that a Wall street broker has offered $3000 for the painting, explaining that he would present it to the Congressional Library in Washington.

The artist, who announced his intention of producing a series of caricatures on the new deal, turned down the offer. He likewise refused to consider an offer of $5000 in cash and a ten per cent. of exhibition receipts made by a Broadway promoter. His price, he insisted, is $15,000.

The anonymous artist announced that the new deal could expect more caricatures, and the artist offered to give a half hour of his time straightening out all the tangles of NRA.

JOB-CASH PLAN TO GO BEFORE CONGRESS

International News Service

Washington, Aug. 30—A social security scheme providing, in effect, either a job or cash for every worker in the nation, was being developed today by experts studying the problem for President Roosevelt.

The new plan is expected to go far beyond the Wagner-Lewis unemployment insurance bill recommended to Congress last year by the President, and which called for a pay-roll tax of $1,000,000,000 a year.

A preliminary study of the social security problem will be started by President Roosevelt at Hyde Park over the week-end, when he will receive more in detail a report on the European investigation of Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator.

The task of framing a concrete plan for submission to Congress next winter now is in the hands of a committee headed by Secretary of Labor Perkins. Principal features of the tentative proposals of experts include:

Compulsory unemployment insurance plan, with tax on pay-rolls.

Regular contribution to government for aid of workers not embraced in the scheme.

PRINCE GEORGE MAY BECOME GREEK KING

By Universal Service

Paris, Aug. 30—The marriage of Prince George of England and Princess Marina of Greece is likely to spur restoration of the royal family in republican Greece. Already powerful factions are considering the possibility that George and Marina may themselves be placed on the throne, Universal Service was informed today by a source close to the Greek royal family.

Premier Panayoti Tsaldaris of Greece was described as an ardent royalist. It was said he is determined to call elections in Greece this fall and expects the results will be overwhelmingly royalist, paving the way for a restoration.

Behind the scenes there has been feverish intrigue the last few days, including mysterious visits to Paris by both Foreign Minister Maximos of Greece, who is also an ardent royalist, and former Premier Venizelos, a revolutionary Republican who is violently opposed to the monarchy.

If the new elections show a royalist sweep, it is said the royalists will wait only for the clam to be restored after the elections before bringing back a monarch. The Greek army is said to be almost solidly royalist.

Legally, former King George II, who was the last occupant of the Greek throne, would be in line to assume the crown, but, because there is still much opposition to him in some Greek royalist factions, Princess Marina and her husband, it was said, might be called upon to unite the royalists.

DADDY BROWNING, SUNSHINE GONE, WAITS DEATH ALONE

3 'ADOPTED GIRLS' TO SHARE HIS FORTUNE, IS REPORT

Breathless and callous conjecture already is dividing his fortune of $30,000,000 to $50,000,000 among three young women, who put him in the headlines the nation over.

The eccentric "sunshine millionaire" lies in the darkness of a coma following a second paralytic stroke in the Hospital for Joint Diseases. All the sunshine has vanished.

ORCHIDS TO SELF

Beside his bed is a vase of rare orchids withering now, even as the man, who boasted only two months ago that he had discovered the secret of longevity and would live to be 100.

Browning sent the orchids to himself. Nobody else sent him anything.

He also—according to report at the hospital—sent for his lawyer, Victor Ross, before lapsing into a coma.

And the rumor is that at the last minute, clinging to consciousness with a blue-veined shrunken hand, he sought to cut his estranged wife, Frances "Peaches" Heenan Browning, from his will. Ross refused today to discuss the rumor.

But the blonde "Peaches," who had her legs thinned down and went on the stage after her break with "Daddy," appears destined to receive one-third income from the Browning estate as dower rights under a settlement approved by the court.

That will give "Peaches" about $400,000 a year, providing the estate is worth $35,000,000. And in addition, she may also be mentioned in the will provisions.

Then there is Mary Louise Spas, who was "Daddy's" original Cinderella girl. He adopted her and, as in the case of his later association with "Peaches," trouble developed.

ADOPTION NULLIFIED

Mary Louise slapped a $500,000 suit against him and charged that he held her prisoner overnight.

Then it developed that she was 21 at the time of her adoption—when she had claimed to be sweet 16—and the adoption was nullified.

It was believed that she, too, would share in "Daddy's" fortune for not long ago, questioned about his will, he said:

"There will be clauses taking care of all my obligations."

Dorothy Sunshine was his other "adopted." She is now Mrs. Clarence B. Hood. Conjecture is strong that both she and her husband will be mentioned in the will of the realtor.

AIDED KIDDIES

"Daddy" founded and financed the Edward W. Browning Foundation for the distribution of toys and playground equipment to hospitals, kindergartens, orhpanages. Funds for carrying on this work are provided for in his will, it is reported.

Since suffering his second stroke, Browning has had occasional luicd intervals, hospital attendants said.

He hasn't asked about the fan mail he so eagerly looked forward to receiving.

He hasn't asked why any of the girls he befriended don't call to visit him or send him flowers.

He mumbled about "unfortunate little children." He whispered to a nurse:

"Millions of them. There are millions of them."

"PEACHES" BROWNING

"Peaches" Browning, whose suit against her "Sunshine Daddy" made him a headline fixture all over the nation, will be enriched to the extent of $400,000 at his death, expected soon in a New York hospital. This is her share as conjecture dispenses of his fortune.

"DADDY" BROWNING

"Daddy Browning, in a New York hospital today, awaits death —alone—except for a vase of self-sent orchids that are withering as he does. His girls have left him to die alone, yet, they will all share in his fortune at his passing. This picture was taken as he danced with "Peaches" when all was happiness.

MARY SPAS

Original Cinderella girl, Mary Louise Spas, who, too, will share greatly in the fortune of "Daddy" Browning. His will has been made and "all my obligations are taken care of," he said before he lapsed into a coma. (Pictures from International News Photograph Service.)

CLEANUP DRIVE IN RUM SHOPS ORDERED

No longer can the lowly spittoon decorate the landscape of any liquor dispensing emporium in Boston, be it a tavern or a restaurant patronized even by males alone.

No longer can a bartender slosh a used glass around in cold water, then twist it under the beer spigot for serving another drink.

And this business of cutting an enlarged collar off a flagon of ale, then using the condensed suds as the base of another flagon must stop.

HEALTH OFFICERS JOIN

These, among other no less drastic regulations, are being enforced in a drive by the State alcoholic beverage control commission in conjunction with the Boston health department, it was learned today.

According to reports more than two-score liquor dispensaries have been served with final warnings for unsanitary practices and at least three have lost their licenses because they failed to heed the injunctions.

DRIVE SPREADS

More places are due to feel the revoking power of the license bodies, it was said, and the drive for cleanliness, which started in Boston, has been extended to practically every other community in the state.

Among the more flagrant violations of the sanitary laws cited against offenders were instances of inadequate lavatory facilities; keeping food of doubtful age; unkempt floors and soiled counters, and bartenders of doubtful personal appearance and habits.

NO SPITTING

The Boston health department has positively banned the spittoon, and pointed to the law about spitting on the floor, sawdust or no.

It has demanded that glasses be washed in hot water, frequently changed. It has put the lid down on the practice of conserving beer by turning the drippings back to general consumption.

Health department doctors will inspect liquor dispensaries and dispensers in the future if present plans are successful, officials declared.

THIEF CRASHES CAR ON TRACK

Crashing through a board fence at a dead end street in Greenwick park, South End, this morning, a stolen sedan dropped ten feet over an embankment to the tracks of the New Haven railroad.

The auto was demolished and a rail was thrown out of alignment, blocking train traffic for several hours.

Police are searching for a young man dressed in a white shirt and dark trousers, who was seen racing up the railroad tracks immediately after the crash. A pool of blood near the scene of the crash indicated the driver had been injured.

The car was registered to Thomas W. Riggins, of Dorchester street, South Boston. He told police that he had parked the machine in the rear of his home at 9 o'clock last night.

$427,000 THEFT LEAD FOUND

By International News Service

Frederick, Md., Aug. 30—Believing they have uncovered a lead in the armored car $247,000 Brooklyn robbery, local authorities today were awaiting the arrival of New York and Federal authorities.

The lead was uncovered when Harold Bross, 21, Brooklyn hoodlum, boasted to a cellmate that he knew various members of the holdup gang.

Bross with Bernard Larson, alias Moran, 20, was arrested Tuesday in an automobile stolen from a garage at Nutley, N. J. He was described by police as a "tough Hombre."

Bross and Larson carried a sheaf of newspaper clippings, describing the Brooklyn robbery and the subsequent manhunt.

Sinclair Victory Perils Present Party Lineups

By Associated Press

San Francisco, Aug. 30—Upton Sinclair's conquest of the Democratic nomination for governor of California brought threat of party realignments today while the victorious former Socialist prepared for a "courtesy call" on President Roosevelt.

At his home in Pasadena, Sinclair said he expects to leave in a few days for the East to confer with the President. He added that his visit would be "merely a courtesy call."

MAJORITY GROWS

Sinclair's majority in Tuesday's primary election continued to mount as supporters of acting Governor Frank F. Merriam, the Republican nominee, called on members of all parties to unite against what they termed the threat of a socialistic state.

Returns from 9077 precincts out of 10,703 gave Sinclair 361,805 votes to 244,858 for his closest opponent, George Creel, writer and publicist, who was supported by many of the regular Democratic leaders.

Governor Merriam, serving out the term of the late Governor James Rolph, Jr., and described as a "safe" Republican, had 294,933 votes in returns from 9306 precincts against 203,579 for former Governor C. C. Young and 125,012 for John R. Quinn, Past National Commander of the American Legion.

BOLT POSSIBLE

There was talk of conservative Democrats and anti-Merriam Republicans bolting to the support of Raymond L. Haight, Commonwealth and Progressive party candidate, who urged voters of all parties get behind his "middle of the road" policies.

The re-election of United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson, who received the nominations of four parties in the primary, appeared more than assured.

All of the 18 Congressmen seeking re-election, nine Republicans and nine Democrats, appeared assured of nomination and six of them will be without major party opposition in the primary.

GEMS GUARDED IN CAR WRECK

Providence, Aug. 30—While Elmer W. Vassar, 29, of Kemper street, Wollaston, lay suffering with a possible skupll fracture and a severe laceration at Rhode Island Hospital today, police were guarding his wrecked car said to contain valuable jewelry.

Vassar's car, according to police, crashed into a truck trailer in West Greenwich, becoming wedged tightly under the truck operated by John B. Sylvia of Fairhaven, Mass.

Later members of Vassar's family requested state police to guard the car, explaining that it contained a quantity of valuable diamonds, samples from a Boston jewelry firm for which Vassar worked as a salesman.

Gold Price Must Go Higher—Warren

Berlin, Aug. 30 (INS)—Professor George Frederick Warren of Cornell, the man on whose advice President Roosevelt took America off the gold standard and devalued the dollar, said at the agrarian congress in Badeilsen, according to today's Lokal Anzeiger, that the world price of gold must be raised further.

"The nations of the world must now make the following decisions," Professor Warren said. "Either lower taxes, service charges, debts, obligations, loans and a thousand other things, or raise the price of gold."

JAP THREAT TO JUNK TREATY DISPARAGED

By Universal Service

Washington, Aug. 30—The administration today disparaged Tokyo's new threat to renounce the London Naval Treaty in December, and remained adamant in its refusal to consider any increase in Japan's present 5-5-3 ratio with this country and Great Britain.

Japan's threat yesterday to dump the treaty overboard unless Japanese demands for increased strength are met at the informal naval discussions in London in October, were regarded here as "for home consumption."

Diplomatic and naval circles declared that despite the apparently independent attitude of Japan, there is little real danger of her carrying out the threat.

If she were to renounce the London treaty or refuse to renew it in 1936, a world naval race, which the Tokyo government could ill afford from a financial standpoint, would result, it was pointed out.

Girl Aid Urged Johnson to Resign Post

Miss Robinson Bared as Recovery Plan Power

By Universal Service

Washington, Aug. 30—Miss Frances Robinson, youthful assistant to General Hugh S. Johnson, was revealed today as a dominant figure in the controversy now swirling about the Recovery Administrator's future.

Known to her friends as "Robbie," she wields power in the NRA second only to the general himself, officials admit.

URGED JOHNSON TO BREAK

The story, first whispered but now openly proclaimed, is that she urged Johnson to an open break with President Roosevelt.

It was her insistence, according to NRA talk, that Johnson continue in supreme command at NRA or else resign, which led Donald Richberg and Blackwell Smith, who succeeded Richberg as NRA counsel, to offer their resignations.

Miss Robinson's view, the story goes, was that her chief seize the opportunity to make a "dramatic exit" from the NRA scene.

For Johnson to accept any other post in the administration, no matter how important, would be a demotion according to her view, officials declared.

Her attitude also widened the breach between Johnson and Secretary of Labor Perkins, according to reports.

MISS FRANCES ROBINSON

The general refused to give out details of his letter of resignation and President Roosevelt's reply, explaining it would be a violation of presidential confidence. "Robbie" has repeatedly denied the general's resignation had been placed in writing.

NRA Chief Calls Secretary to Beach for Parley

HURRY CALL FOR "ROBBIE"

Miss Robinson's dominance of NRA personnel matters has been upheld throughout by General Johnson. When she first went with the NRA it was as Johnson's stenographer, but she was speedily raised to a rank corresponding to deputy administrator.

Johnson at present is vacationing at Bethany Beach, Del. When he left last week, Miss Robinson said she would remain in Washington, but Monday she was summoned to the beach to confer on details of NRA reorganization and has remained there since.

Speeders Barred in West Roxbury

Labor Day week-end motorists will do well if they slow down a bit while traveling through Roslindale and West Roxbury districts. Captain John J. Hanrahan of the West Roxbury division has details of police to patrol the busy streets in his division with orders to stop all speeders.

Jesse James' Helper Dies

By International News Service

Port Arthur, Ont., Aug. 30—Passing of another one of the few who had direct contact with Jesse James, bandit of the last century, was recorded today with burial of George Kydd, 92-year-old blacksmith.

It was Kydd who, according to desperado legends, reversed the shoes of Jesse's horse, confusing the trailers in a western manhunt, and allowing Jesse to "hole up" until pursuit died down.

BOLIVIA CLAIMS CHACO VICTORY

La Paz, Bolivia, Aug. 30—The Bolivian high command claimed a big victory in the Chaco warfare today, asserting the Paraguayans had been led into a trap in which 530 were killed.

A statement issued by military chiefs said the enemy in their haste to flee, left behind a large quanity of equipment. It read:

"Our troops at present busy burying the bodies of 530 Paraguayans who fell in action. On the sown cotton plantation were found rifles, machine guns, army eqipment and ammnition in large Quantities.

"This disorder gives an idea of the panic which seized the routed enemy forces which could not help but flee. The trap into which the enemy fell has had no equal in any campaign in the Gran Chaco up to today.

"The proportion of dead, up to now, as established by the high command, is approximately 100 Paraguayan soldiers to one Bolivian."

Minimum Milk Price Banned

By Universal Service

Washington, Aug. 30—The AAA has gone to court against one Boston milk company and informed another company it would not swing a price-fixing club over warring distributors.

The Whiting Co., second largest Boston distributor, was accused of paying farmers less than the license price in an injunction suit filed by the justice department in Boston federal court at request of AAA.

Consolidated Dairies of Boston joined the Whiting Co. in requesting the AAA to establish minimum retail prices, thus outlawing price cutters. Secretary Wallace telegraphed a refusal to M. H. Bancroft, president of Consolidated.

SOVIETIZING OF SCHOOLS SEEN BY SCHALL

By Universal Service

Chicago, Aug. 30—Senator Thomas D. Schall of Minnesota has fired a fresh broadside at the Roosevelt administration of which he has been the most severe of all critics.

He charged that the brain trusters are out to accelerate the sovietizing of the United States by flooding the public schools with NRA propaganda.

In line with this program, he declared, the PWA recently decided to allot public funds for printing NRA text books for the schools, but refused any money for the purchasing of standard text books sorely needed in many districts.

RFC ACTION FLAYED

He took a fling at the tardiness displayed by the RFC in coming to the aid of the Chicago school teachers. He thought this was a political gesture and was delayed to bring the payment near enough the fall elections to be more than a coincidence.

He said:

"Refusal of the Roosevelt administration to permit the use of PWA money for the text books needed in every school district in the United States and the statement that the government is going to print NRA text books and have this radical doctrine taught in our public schools are two very important developments of the Russian-Roosevelt New Deal.

DEMANDS TEXT BOOKS

"At the next session of Congress I intend to demand the purchase of text books for all school children in the United States without the change of a single text.

"This seeming attempt to destroy the public schools of the United States by this administration must be stopped."

The next move, he declared, would be support of Governor Floyd B. Olson in Minnesota with the idea of putting him forward as their candidate for vice president in 1936.

Jury Summons, Wedding, Conflict

Ware, Aug. 30—Charles Roy set his wedding day for Sept. 24. Handed a summons to serve in Northampton on that date as a juror, he has arranged an interview with the presiding judge to see if he can talk himself out of his predicament. He probably figures it will be easier to explain to the judge than to the girl.

Mystery Bullet Wounds Autoist

Cranston, R. I., Aug. 30—James Murphy, brother of Patrolman Frank Murphy of the Cranston police, was struck in the head by a .22 calibre bullet as he was leaning over the engine of his automobile here. Police were unable to learn the scource of the shot. Murphy's condition is not serious.

$20,000 Blaze at Gorham, N.H., Farm

Gorham, N. H. Aug. 30—A fire of undertermined origin, which caused about $20,000 damage when it destroyed two garages, barn, the ell of Philbrook Farm and an ice house, is under investigation today. About 200 tons of hay, together with numerous antiques, were destroyed.

Johan Lang, public hangman in Vienna. He wore "full dress" with a silk "top-hat" at each hanging, walked into the cell of a man condemned, introduced himself with a bow, and saying, "I am very sorry you must hang. You will have a few minutes in which to make a last request."

The Viennese hangman, crowded with work since the murder of Dollfuss, wears his dress suit no longer. Broken down nervously, he is in an asylum, but expected to recover.

Will Rogers from Moscow sends word: "I never saw so many buildings going up in my life."

"Best minds" will note that their "early and complete collapse of Bolshevik Russia" seems to be strangely postponed.

In Russia, as here in the United States, everything is run under government regulations. It might pay to send an American commission to study Russian methods. Everybody is at work there.

Child Warns U. S. Not to Copy Soviet Plan

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Contrast!

The American civilization.

Its promise of schools, roads, luxuries probably in a measure too large.

Some faults.

Some self-indulgence.

Some characteristics of a spoiled child.

But a sense of fair play.

The freedom of the individual to develop himself.

WHERE IS IDEALISM?

And who is it that says we are to swap all that for the blank failure, the utter disgrace, the broke, bankrupt, insolvent, "planned economy" of Europe and Russia?

Where is American common sense?

Where is the voice of the American people whose idea is that the last thing on earth we want is to be split up in a right and a left?

Where is the laugh we should give at this new-fangled imitation of the ways of jazzed-up Europe and Russia?

Where is our sense?

Where is our genius for seeing clearly?

FORGET THE WORLD

Where is our eyesight gone when we can't see that there are forces at work—whispers at the President's ear to say that we, the United States, should tear pages out of the book of failure and bankruptcy, material and moral, of that welter of despair aboard?

Contrast?

What a contrast!

Here we are—and if need be we can LOCK OURSELVES UP and forget the rest of the world and it's rotten philosophy AND BE PROSPEROUS!

Here we are with a constitutional history of success lasting longer than any other story of government, fair to all, in the history of the whole world.

And we talk about a changed deal!

WHAT JACKASSES

And we run a show to split our people into a right and left?

And we fall for the absurdities of taxing Peter's left pocket to put something into Peter's right pocket?

The men who work with their brains and those who work with their biceps ought to snap together-

America needs them!

FATHER FOUND BY SON AFTER 16-YEAR HUNT

A 20-year-old son and his father, who were reunited through efforts of state police after searching for each other for the past 16 years, were at the father's Westwood home today getting acquainted with each other.

Sixteen years ago Frank A. Feeney, of Pond street, Westwood, was divorced by his wife and his son, William Stewart Feeney, then four, was given into her custody. The child was told that his dad was dead, but when he reached the age of 15 convinced that his father was alive, he left home in search of him.

Meantime the father made desperate attempts to find his son.

Last year, the youth, still continuing his search, joined the Canadian non-permanent militia, a relief system of camps similar to the CCC camps.

Less than a month ago, a visiting fortune teller told William that he would go to the United States where he would meet his father.

He wrote the State police here giving a minute description of his father and within a half hour after reception of the letter here state police located father.

Mr. Feeney wired $120 to his son with instructions to come on to Boston.

Doctor Gives U. S. Official Quintuplet Birth Data

By Universal Service

Chicago, Aug. 30—An official story of the birth of the famous Dionne quintuplets, filled with drama and human interest, was made public for the first time today. The story was written for the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association by Dr. Allan Roy Defoe, the Canadian country doctor who assisted in bringing the five babes into the world.

Dr. Defoe had just returned to his home in the village of Callander, Ont., when he received a "hurry-up" call from the Dionne home. His story related:

"I arrived to find the home in confusion, no preparation made for confinement except a tea kettle boiling on the stove.

"Two babies already had been born and a third was just making its appearance. Two neighbors were acting as midwives.

"The father had disappeared. I took over the situation and delivered the third baby. shortly, another baby was brought into the world. This one was followed by still another.

"In the early hours of the morning, still sleepy from a previous case, the whole situation seemed to be unreal and dreamlike, but I mechanically went about the business of looking after the babies."

"I didn't see how all of the babies could possibly live, so I baptized them all separately. They were then wrapped in the only covering available, which proved to be the remnants of cotton sheeting and old napkins."

But hope for the mother seemed dim.

"The husband was still missing and it was my duty to get a priest. Reluctantly leaving the midwives in charge, I hurried away to bring the priest, a distance of two and a half miles.

"On returning, I found the mother's condition improving.

FORD PLANS 2 STEEL MILLS

By International News Service

Detroit, Aug. 30—Henry Ford today declared his independence of steel manufacturers, announcing that he would spend $13,000,000 to build two new steel mills in Dearborn, to make all the steel needed for his vast industrial empire. The Ford statement said the construction program would take about eight months and will cost between $12,000,000 and $13,000,000.

"When the new mills are ready Ford can produce 3000 cars a day without buying a pound of steel in the market," the announcement said.

PUBLICITY BEST CRIME WEAPON, SAYS HOOVER

By Associated Press

Milwaukee, Aug. 30—J. Edgar Hoover today demanded prompt prosecution and severe punishment of felons in the nation's anti-crime campaign.

The chief of the Division of Investigation of the Department of Justice told the American Bar Association convention that the gangster's reign constituted one of the country's greatest problems and that the mobster will continue to be a problem for some time to come.

But great progress in the criminal's elimination can be made, he said, if the American citizen will dedicate himself to a demand that capture be certain, prosecution prompt and punishment severe.

He brought up the case of John Dillinger, who was slain by federal agents in Chicago last month. He said:

"Whether our prisons should be places of punishment for crime or abodes in which entertainment is furnished, is, I admit, not my affair. But I do maintain they should be institutions from which major criminals cannot escape, and that any conditions which render escape possible should be eliminated immediately."

Hoover asserted the subject of escapes is of particular interest to his staff "because the lives of members of our organization pay for those escapes." He mentioned Dillinger's flight from jail and remarked that the outlaw's subsequent activities resulted in the death of one of the division's most capable men.

Of pardons, he said:

"It cannot be possible that the vast numbers of desperate criminals turned loose upon society by the manifest abuse of the pardon and parole power can be in any manner justified, even if we concede that a humanitarian sense of mercy or consideration may have prompted some of these seemingly unwarranted releases.

"I believe that possibly the best solution of this problem is widespread publicity. Anything bearing upon the matter of a pardon or parole should be widely publicized, particularly the identity of those representing the criminals seeking the extension of clemency."

What Mill Strike Hitting 500,000 Is All About

Salient features of the textile strike situation:

United Textile Workers of America demand: Six-hour day, five-day week; no cuts in present weekly wages; uniform pay for all areas; an end to the stretch-out, whereby workers must tend more and more machines; no discrimination against union members; recognition of the union as the bargaining agency and an arbitration tribunal.

Union officials say that under the Textile Code their hourly wage is higher, but there is less in the pay envelope at the end of the week.

HOW MILLS STAND

The mill owners stand squarely on Code Number One. They say they have observed the law; that NRA has raised labor costs, that it is impossible further to increase wages or curtail hours; that raw material prices are up 100 per cent; that demand for cotton goods has fallen off; that the strike will put a premium on "force and violence" in amending the code and thus have a serious affect on 682 other industries now operating under codes.

According to the union, the strike order will affect at least half a million workers—nearly twice that number if rayon, woolen and silk mill hands are ordered out.

The Coton Textile Institute, manufacturers' representative, claims there are fewer than 60,000 union members in the industry.

VITAL STRIKE CITIES

There are 1281 cotton mills that may feel the strike. Of the 31,000,000 spindles in these plants, only 26,000,000 are now in operation.

Fall River is the largest single cotton center in the country, with these others following in importance:

New Bedford, Greenville, S. C.; Spartanburg, S. C.; Gastonia, N. C.; Greensborough, N. C.; Pawtucket, R. I., which has been selected as New England strike headquarters; Lewiston, Me.; Macon, Ga.; La Grange, Ga.; Huntsville, Ala.; Augusta, Ga.; Union, S. C.; Belmont, N. C.; Lowell, Dover, N. H.

The largest single unit of the industry is the plant of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, at Manchester, N. H.

COST $1,000,000 A WEEK

Union officials admit that it will cost $1,000,000 a week to maintain the general strike, more than the total sum now in their treasury. To make a long strike effective, they are counting on government aid for the strikers.

The mills have at least enough stock in reserve to last from three to eight weeks.

Chief spokesmen for the two sides are George A. Sloan of New York, head of the Cotton Textile Institute and the Code Authority, and Francis J. Gorman, of Providence, R. I., first vice president of the union and head of its strike committee.

Rev. J. Keyes, B. C., Chosen By Jesuits

South Norwalk, Ct., Aug. 30 (INS)—Rev. Francis Lucey, professor of history at Georgetown University, was elected president of the Jesuit Philosophical Association of the Eastern States, as the 11th annual convention of the association closed here last night. He succeeds Rev. James F. McDonald, whose term expires December 31. The association voted Rev. James Keyes, of Boston College, to the vice-presidency. Rev. Robert Hewitt, of Weston College, was re-elected secretary.

Discussion on topics of particular interest to the attending Jesuits alone took up the main part of the general session. Rev. Joseph F. Beglan of Fordham University, and Rev. Joseph P. Kelly, of Weston College, presided.

New York, Aug. 30 (INS)—Inability to pay a $19 hotel bill police said today, was responsible for the suicide of 17-year-old Isabelle Wilson, daughter of a wealthy Scarsdale, N. Y., couple. She hurled herself from a window on the 15th floor of the hotel as a friend tried vainly to restrain her.

Roger Kruepper, a radio announcer whom Miss Wilson met recently, tried to soothe her, but she pulled away and jumped from the window. The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wilson, have been on the West Coast on a vacation states today were being invited to join in the line of march.

Mill Owners Plan Campaign Here

New England manufacturers, meanwhile, were preparing to meet the situation along lines agreed on in a secret session of 75 plant managers in the Chamber of Commerce building here.

Plants will be kept open after the strike call is issued—on the theory that most of the mill hands do not want to walk out. If they do, then the mills will be closed, according to Russell T. Fisher, secretary of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, who said:

"Those present at the meeting unqualifiedly endorsed the stand taken by George A. Sloan, head of the Cotton Textile Institute, in his telegram to Lloyd arrison, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board.

"We hope the strike may yet be avoided. But the mill owners plan no concerted action. Each mill will deal with its workers individually, for each mill has individual problems."

State Chief Sees No Hope For Peace

At the State House, John L. Campos, associate commissioner of the Department of Labor and Industries, was pessimistic about preventing the strike, saying:

"I see very little hope now of halting the strike. The action of the employers in refusing to sit down with the union representatives is very regrettable. Unless they change their attitude there is nothing, in my opinion, that can stave off the strike."

From every indication, overtures by Chairman Lloyd Garrison of the National Labor Relations Board to settle the threatened cotton textile strike had fallen flat today, and the call for a national walkout was to be made this morning.

Joseph Sylvia, strike director of New England, declared in Pawtucket last night that manufacturers were asserting that the U. T. W. represented only a minority of the cotton textile workers, but they would be amazed by the numerical show of the U. T. W. strikers.

He said that at least 150,000 would be affected in this section and that while all were not union members, he was convinced that the total number would respond to the call for walkout. The national figure is set at better than 600,000 men and women. About 1500 mills are affected.

150,000 Workers In New England Affected

This ultimatum by strike leaders followed the point blank refusal of George A. Sloan of the Cotton-Textile Institute, representing employers, to parley with U. T. W. strike leaders at Washington.

In a telegram to Chairman Lloyd Garrison of the national labor Board, Sloan stated that the industry refused to be "threatened" by strike. He declared that accession to the U. T. W. demands would set a precedent for strikes in every other industry.

However, the federal administration, deeply concerned about the danger of the recovery drive being braked by the walkout, immediately inaugurated plans for bringing the strike to an early end.

A committee of three will be named by Garrison, Secretary of Labor Perkins and Recovery Administrator Johnson to study the issue in dispute and recommend a basis for prompt settlement.

Sloan offered to come to the meeting as an "individual" but Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the union's special strike committee, spurned that proposal. He said:

Gorman Warns of Red Strike Plot

"Now the air is clear. The cotton textile mill owners have definitely and finally refused to meet in conference with us at the invitation of Chairman Garrison. The strike call will therefore be issued tomorrow, in accordance with the union convention's mandate."

In a radio address last night, Gorman pleaded with the textile workers for concerted and "orderly" action. He added:

"Particularly beware of communist intrigue. Keep your ranks free from communism and communist trickery. Stamp it out wherever it raises its head. Be stern about this. Do not bring dishonor upon our cause or your union by an act that cannot be defended before the court of public opinion."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, spoke on the same program, pledging the aid of the A. F. of L. to the strikers and declaring unsatisfactory conditions of which the textile workers complain present a vital test to the national recovery administration.

Not only were strike leaders concerned with the "Red" menace here, but the U. S. Immigration Department, the State Department of Public Safety, as well as Boston and other police departments, were concentrating on preparations to meet communistic programs.

Needham Plans No Strike Guard Duty

Miss Mary Ward, Immigration Commissioner warned that alien radicals fomenting disorders or violence would be subject to immediate deportation proceedings.

General Daniel Needham, head of the public safety department and chief of the state police, said that unless ordered by Governor Ely, his department would not intervene in the situation, but that it had already familiarized itself with proposed communist leaders and their plans.

In Boston as in other centers, police of the radical and "Red" squads, warned in advance that the communists proposed to "steal" the strike from authorized union leaders, had enough information from their investigations to strike a death blow to "Red" aspirations, they said.

Miss Elizabeth Nord, head of the policy board of the American Federation of Silk Workers, reporting to strike headquarters from a tour of New England silk centers, said a strike in the silk industry was inevitable.

There are 300,000 in this and the rayon and woolen industries.

In Lewiston, Me., approximately 300 textile mill workers adopted a resolution criticizing Mayor Robert J. Wieseman for his refusal to permit the use of city hall for a meeting.

ITALY GIVES LIE TO WINKLER'S CHARGES

By Associated Press

Rome, Aug. 30—"A lie from beginning to end," was an authoritative reaction here today to charges made by Franz Winkler, former vice-chancellor of Austria, that his native country is "in the hands of Mussolini."

An authority said:

"The charges are nothing more or less than an expression of Winkler's bitterness. Premier Mussolini has not subsidized Von Starhemberg (present vice-chancellor of Austria).

"The very fact of the enormous amount ($1,000,000) mentioned by Winkler as having been paid Von Starhemberg, is proof that this statement is not true.

"As a reconciliation between Austria and Germany, Mussolini always sought to bring that about but only on the basis of two separate and independent States seeking each other's friendship.

"He did not want a reconciliation which would be equivalent to an anschluss (merger), but he always realized that Germany's friendship, especially economically, would be helpful to Austria."

The general impression here following Winkler's interview was not one of undiluted surprise, at least in reference to one or two points.

At the time of Von Starhemberg's last visit to Il Duce this month, some well-informed sources said the Austrian heimwehr leader had come to ask for funds but it was not indicated whether he had in mind a loan for the Austrian state or a loan for the heimwehr. Nor was it indicated whether he got a loan.

'OUR MARY' OFF TO AIR RACES

By International News Service

Hollywood, Aug. 30—This time it's Mary Pickford who's going traveling.

"America's Sweetheart" was scheduled to depart at 4 p. m. today by airplane for Cleveland, to be hostess and the honorary referee at the National air races starting tomorrow.

Douglas Fairbanks, her estrangled husband, will not make the trip. Reports of a reconciliation were not denied yesterday by Miss Pickford, who has had several "dates" with her husband since he returned.

Pig Speeds Up Car; Man Dies

By International News Service

Norwich, N. Y., Aug. 30—Death came to Stanley Sherwood, 39, under strange circumstances today, with proximity of a small pig to an automobile accelerator directly responsible for a fatal crash.

Sherwood purchased the pig, placed it in the front seat of his car and started home.

The car leaped forward, swerved from the road and crashed into a telephone pole. Sherwood died five hours later.

ELY TO PRESS COLE CAUSE ON AIR TONIGHT

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

In a stirring defense of the policies of President Roosevelt, former Mayor James M. Curley hits out sharply at Governor Ely, General Charles H. Cole, his democratic opponent for Governor, and Gaspar G. Bacon, G. O. P. candidate.

Cole, he pictures as the "mannequin or mouthpiece" of the "self-appointed bosses" of the Democracy in Massachusetts, who finds himelf in an "uncomfortable position" owing to the censure of national policies by Governor Ely at "paternaltistic and tending toward socialism."

And Bacon, the former Mayor declares, has made it clear that his position is one of "caustic criticism and bitter opposition to President Roosevelt and his policies."

ELY ON AIR TONIGHT

Governor Ely, in second address of the campaign in support of General Cole, speaks tonight at 7:30 p. m. over the WNAC network.

At various rallies Curley declared:

"Every thoughtful American recognizes that President Roosevelt is engaged in the most colossal task ever attempted in the history of the nation.

"This task is to save America from Communism, Bolshevism and chaos through stabilizing and promoting industrial prosperity and providing work and wages for the millions still unemployed."

With "victory over the depression" now in sight, General Cole, speaking on Cape Cod, urged everyone to get behind the President. In his speech he said:

COLE BACKS PRESIDENT

"If we were to change our plan of campaign now it would be just as disastrous as to change the plan of a campaign in the middle of a battle."

"We would lose every objective we have thus far attained and would soon find ourselves back to those dark days of March 1, 1933, when business was demoralized and the people knew not which way to turn."

Before the Everett Republican city and ward committees at Suntaug Inn, Lynnfield, Bacon denounced impending general increases in compulsory automobile insurance rates as "intolerable."

The present compulsory law, he declared, has proved itself to be an expensive experiment, with steadily increasing rates and no alleviation of the "appalling accident rate."

ACON SCORES RACKET

Ninety-two per cent of the motorists, he pointed out, have been compelled to pay for the recklessness of 8 per cent. Said Bacon:

"It has placed a premium on fraudulent claims, has built up rings of crooked doctors and lawyers and has permitted the development of a racket, which is now recognized as being largely responsible for the annual rate increases."

The plan for a state fund for insuring cars, he said, has been declared unconstitutional.

CHALLENGE BY GOODWIN

At this same meeting Frank A. Goodwin, rival candidate for Governor, challenged Bacon to a debate on the state fund idea.

Goodwin claimed that Bacon had challenged any Democrat to debate on the subject and he wondered why a Republican was excluded.

Goodwin said he takes issues with Bacon on the supreme court decision on the constitutionality of the state fund plan and also on Bacon's assertion that the Goodwin scale of rates for insurance under a state plan, namely, $18 for passenger cars, $25 for trucks and $100 for taxi's, will not provide enough money to run the fund.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. They should pour out thru the bladder 3 pints of fluid a day which contains 4 pounds of waste matter.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes. Your common sense will tell you that this is impossible. Treatments of this nature may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

Prince George To Take Bride In Colorful Pageant

By WILLIAM HILLMAN
Universal Service Special Cable

London, Aug. 30—When Prince George leads his beautiful Grecian princess to the altar in historic Westminster Abbey, this November or December, it will be amid pomp, glamor, and splendor unequalled in a royal marriage in England since his father, then Duke of York, married beautiful Princess Mary of Teck, now Queen of England.

The Prince of Wales, bachelor heir to the throne of the British empire, will act as best man. The Dukes of York and Gloucester will be groomsmen, while the two little Princesses, Elizabeth and Margaret, daughters of the Duke of York, are expected to be among the bridesmaids.

COLORFUL PAGEANT

The archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by the archbishop of York and the bishop of London, Winchester and Oxford, will conduct the ceremony. More than 1000 guests, including visiting royalties, will attend the colorful pageant.

The privy council will be summoned shortly, probably at historic Balmoral Castle, where the King is now in residence. Not until King George has given his consent by a formal order in council will actual preparations be made for the marriage ceremony.

These duties will devolve on the 21-year old Duke of Norfolk who, as hereditary Earl Marshal, is the peer personally responsible for the wedding preparations.

Prince George is expected to return to London alone about September 7. Princess Marina is expected later in the month. She will be the guest of the royal family at Buckingham Palace.

The royal yacht Victoria and Albert, escorted by cruisers, will be sent to convey her from a French port to England. Prince George and his entourage will be on the landing stage to greet her as she sets foot on the soil of her future country. A royal salute will be fired from Dover Castle and all naval vessels will "dress" in honor of the bride.

DUKEDOM LIKELY

Princess Marina will be the first foreign princess to marry an English prince of the blood since 1882, when the Duke of Albany, fourth son of Queen Victoria, married the Princess of Waldeck and Pyrmont. Both this marriage and the royal naught, in 1879, will be taken as precedents.

It will not be as Prince George of England that the royal bridegroom will sign the marriage register, for one of his father's manifestations of pleasure at the betrothal will be the conferment on Prince George of a royal dukedom. It is considered likely that Prince George will be made Duke of Kent.

The honor will come belatedly to Prince George. Seldom has the son of a reigning monarch reached the age of 30 without being made a peer of the realm.

"Miss Gloucester" Picked

Gloucester, Aug. 30—Miss Mary Matson, 17, added to her beauty honors here when she was given a new title, that of "Miss Gloucester."

Mrs. F. W. Bird Goes Abroad

Mrs. Francis W. Bird, of East Walpole, accompanied by her son, Francis, are en route to England, where they will meet Miss Mary R. Bird and Miss Anna C. Bird, Mrs. Bird's daughters, in London. The Misses Bird have been spending the summer touring Italy and France, while Mrs. Bird has been at Ipswich with Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird.

They will return to Endean, the Bird family homestead, at East Walpole, the 1st of October.

Miss Dianna Bird, the sub-debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, of Endean and Ipswich, will return to England this autumn to study at the school she attended last winter.

NRA IS CALLED INEFFICIENT BY PRIEST

By Universal Service

South Norwalk, Conn., Aug. 30—President Roosevelt was commended for reconstructional activities in resolutions unanimously adopted by the Jesuit Philosophical Society at the close of its convention here.

Sharp disagreement was expressed by several priests with the operation of the Rooseveltian plans. Important changes were suggested. The NRA was criticized.

Rev. Joseph Thorning, dean of Georgetown's post graduate school, commended the president's character and initiative yet stressed:

"I doubt there is enough honesty left in the country to get it unaided out of the depression. We need abolition of the present congressional system. Congress should be formed of factional or vocational groups, instead of geographical representatives.

"The NRA is impeded by refusal to permit employee-controlled bodies to govern industry. But no remedy can suceed if the American Federation of Labor does not reorganize. It is run now on a basis of crafts not industries."

NRA CALLED FAILURE

He declared the company union must go and cited the papal encyclical of 1931, drafted before the NRA, as authority. He arraigned the NRA as weak in enforcement, inefficient on complaints, lacking in consumer-protection and fostering monopolies. He cited the aluminum and electrical industries, both administered by the monopolists, he said, as examples.

Rev. J. Wilfred Parsons, editor of "America," went further.

"The NRA is a relative failure. Incompetents and self-seekers should be removed from its codes. The NRA's personnel is the greatest obstacle to recovery. There are too many chisellers on the codes—enough to ruin the program or turn it to their own uses.

"Low wages constitutes unfair competition. That's how Grand Rapids instead of New York got Columbia's Harkness Library job. General Johnson should hear of that."

ASSAILS COMMUNISM

Reverend Edmund A. Walsh, regent of Georgetown's Foreign Service College, assailed Communism:

"If the Communist party confined itself to righting social wrongs and did not invade personal liberty and conscience, the Catholic Church would be its strongest ally. But now, no one can be Catholic and Communist, too.

"Since Russia was recognized, the Communist party has increased 300 per cent and 30,000 trained leaders have joined. Stalin's committee in Moscow instructs them by cable . . . I have seen the actual messages. This violates Russia's no-agitation pact with Washington."

NEW BANCROFT FACTS FILED

Los Angeles, Aug. 30—An affidavit asserting George Bancroft, screen actor, was not divorced in New York between January 1, 1913 and the present, has been filed here by attorneys for Mrs. Edna G. Bancroft. The affidavit was signed the clerk of the New York supreme court.

Mrs. Bancroft is suing the actor for $1000 a month separate maintenance, which Bancroft is contesting on the grounds he was divorced from her 17 years ago before he married, May 30, 1916, his present wife, Octavia Broske, who is the mother of his 17-year-old daughter.

In a recent deposition, Bancroft said a New York attorney obtained the divorce for him, but in the intervening years he had lost all the records.

The first Mrs. Bancroft, who has named Octavia Broske as a co-respondent in an amended complaint, contends in her suit that the actor never obtained a divorce and had deserted her.

Color of House Brings $10 Fine

Danbury, Conn., Aug. 30—Peter Lupienski's house is painted cream color and Peter, who for four years gallantly defended his choice of green, is working out a $10 fine.

Police said Peter got drunk, and drove from the house his wife, mother and eleven children, all champions of the cream color, when one of his sons started to apply that pigment on the hitherto green structure.

RUSSIAN BALLERINA'S SIMPLE ROUTINE FOR LOVELY BACK LINES

Given in Marriage

— By Adele Garrison —

Dicky's Business Partner, Declaring Open War on Madge, Agrees to Postpone "Getting Even" Until After the Ceremony.

CHAPTER 128

AS I FINISHED my hurried talk to Edith Fairfax over the telephone and waited breathlessly for her answer, Lillian raised her hands high in the air and patted them noiselessly. But though I was cheered at her approval of my tactics, I was not assured of the success of my ruse. Dicky's manner when he had told me of Edith's dolor had been such as to make me very doubtful of being able to overcome her expressed determination not to come to Mary's wedding, because she thought I did not want her.

Of course I knew that her reason, as given to Dicky, was but a subterfuge. Although we had been scrupulously considerate of each other when we met socially, both Edith and I knew what our real feelings were toward each other—the usual emotions of two women whose affections are set upon the same man.

UNREQUITED LOVE

I knew something else, also—that her aversion to me was stronger than my dislike of her. She had the consciousnes of defeat and of frustration to whet the edge of her hatred against me—for I knew verv well that her feeling toward me could well be dubbed hatred.

Dicky did not return in any degree the love she had cherished for him for so many years. Indeed, I was beginning to wonder if he were not fast losing the comradely liking and admiration he had always had for her because of the nagging about their partnership to which she so often subjected him.

But all this was beside the mark. Was Edith taking this occasion as an excuse to throw down an open gauntlet between us, or was she really cherishing a special rancor against me because I had refused to listen to her warning about the mysterious "Floss"? Would her better instincts and her sense of decorum lead her to smother either a general or a special grievance, at least until the wedding was over? Above all, would she see through my present ruse?

I had not long to wait for the answer to my last query. There was a silence of perhaps five seconds after I had finished speaking, then Edith's pretty, silvery laugh, a bit strained but mirthful-sounding, came over the wire.

"Bravo, old dear!" she said mockingly. "A noble effort, nobly planned and worthily executed. But don't get it into your head that I've fallen for it. I made up my mind, after I made my spiel to the Dicky-bird, that while I don't care any more of a tinker's dam what you think about me than you do about my opinion of you, it isn't exactly the clubby thing to sharpen up the knives upon the occasion of a wedding. So, if you're willing to call a truce for a few days, I am. Does that go for you?"

"—AFTER THE WEDDING!"

"I haven't the faintest idea what you mean," I told her mendaciously. "But if you think there's need for a truce, I'm perfectly willing to agree to anything you say, just so you come to the wedding."

"Oh, I'll be there with both my silver-slippered feet, and with my hair, if not in a braid, in the very latest coiffure," she said, in the same mirthful, mocking tones. "And I'll bring the little ribbons, if you're dead sure you want 'em, and aren't just stalling beautifully for the general effect."

"Of course I want them," I told her indignantly, and Edith's mocking laugh rang out again.

"Keep the lingerie in place," she advised. "I've already told you I'll be there, and nothing but diamonds and pearls shall drop from my ruby lips until after the wedding. But just a word in your shell-like ear"—her voice was suddenly malevolent—"look out for the toads tumbling out afterward. I haven't forgotten the way you gave me the air when I was trying to do you a service about your precious husband, and I'm going to settle that score in full when I get around to it. But a truce for the wedding! Ta, ta, darling!"

LILLIAN STEPS IN

"Goodbye," I said dazedly, for her kaleidoscopic changes of mood had left me breathless. And then Lillian was upon me, her hands clutching my shoulders, her eyes brilliant.

"Did you put it over?" she asked breathlessly. "It sounded like it for a bit, but you looked so woe-begone at the last that my heart did flip-flops."

"You can put it right back in its proper place," I told her, smiling. "Everything is perfectly all right. Edith will come to the wedding, and she will 'declare a truce,' whatever that means, until after all the festivities are over."

"Whatever that means!" Lillian repeated slowly. "You know very well what that means, and I don't want you holding out on me. Get me right! I'm not asking you anything that concerns Dicky, but Edith Fairfax is something else again. You've got too much honor and chivalry, and too many scruples, to deal with that dame.

"Come clean, old dear. Give mother all the dope. Just what is this truce, and what does little Edie plan to do when the truce is ended?"

Insidious Development of Ugly S-Curves in Spine Ages and Disfigures Body

By Juliet Shelby

ARE YOU GOING to turn a beautifully sculptured back on the world these glamorous fall nights?

The alluring, envied figure in a backless gown isn't in the scrawny S-curve category any more. What fashion demands to set off her elegant, sartorial wares this season is the normal, graceful back, neither too plump nor too lean, a neatly balanced silhouette that curves where curves should be.

An unattractive back usually dates back to our childhood and days of ill-spent sitting, standing and walking. A poor start as a child is almost sure to reflect a poor carriage in later life. Artists may differ as to beauty of face and form, but they are universal in their choice of what constitutes a lovely back.

* * *

First of all a back must be straight as to spine—and slim. Not slim as to show protruding shoulder blades but smoothly covered with a firm layer of muscles. Neither is a back beautiful that is rounded with pads of fat between the shoulders or at the base of the neck. And the S-curve, so common among women in the thirties, is both aging and disfiguring.

* * *

"Throw back your shoulders" was doubtless your parents' slogan when you were young, for nothing robs a woman of charm and poise so much as an S-shaped back, flat chest, and protruding stomach.

Control of the abdominal muscles is necessary to back beauty. A good bodily position practiced daily will not only beautify the back and shoulders, but will correct a flat, sagging bust. Weak muscles allow shoulders to droop and also make ugly hollows in the upper chest. Another defect, greatly noticeable the last few years, is the deep curve in the lower back, with a protruding "derriere" and all-too prominent tummy.

Even if your back is perfectly proportioned, it will not be beautiful if the skin is not clear and smooth. My tar soap and yeast treatment will clear up a pimply condition of the back in a week's time, so concentrate now on turning a lovely back on the world this fall.

This set of exercises is chosen by a famous Russian ballet master for keeping figures of his ballerinas lithe and supple. If you have a beautifully moulded back and a graceful outline, what matters the report from the bathroom scales? Your reflection in the mirror will be satisfying and that is all that is asked.

If you would like my set of six simple exercises which strengthens the muscles of back, and brings grace and dignity to the figure, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Juliet Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston.

Sun Bathing Skin Cure

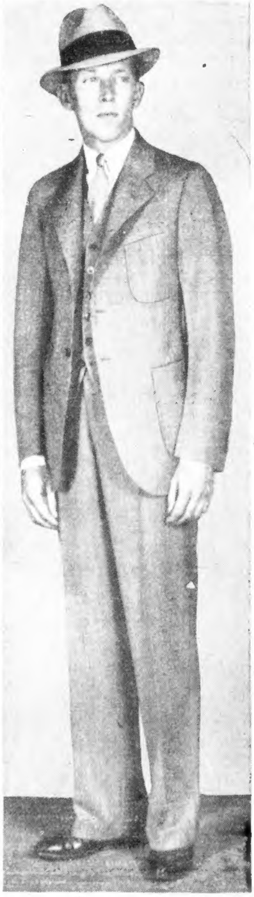
Question: Will excessive sun-bathing prove to be harmful to the skin? Will the sun cure the pimples that seem to come out on my face onl, in hot weather?

Brighton. V. O.

Answer: If your skin is sufficiently oily, and if the sun's rays are not too strong, you may take sun baths without harming the skin—providing you do not expose your skin hours on end. Sun-bathing will, however, toughen your skin. That makes your skin hard to nourish and soften until the natural oils reappear and your tan disappears.

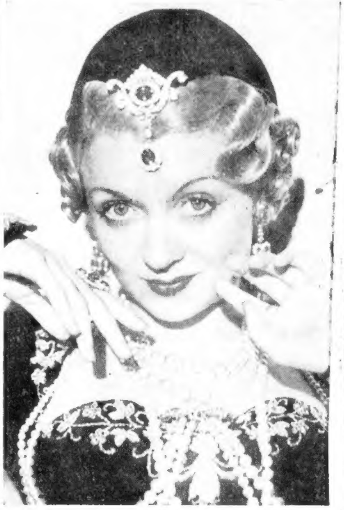
I judge from what you write that you have a slight acne condition. The sun helps to purify your skin. Take as many sun baths as you can, but rub a little olive oil into your skin before exposing it. If the slight acne condition continues, I advise you to see a doctor. Have him prescribe a diet and a local treatment.

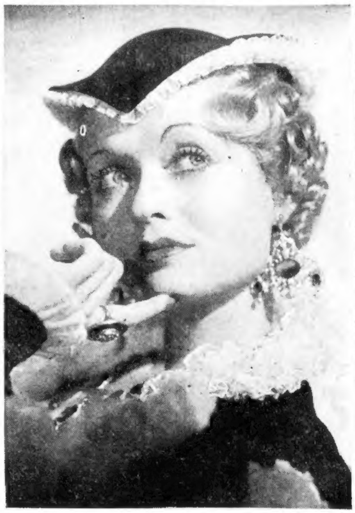
New England Favorite



GREY and blue fine pin checked worsted has a definite two-way appeal—men choose it for its business-like practicality, women vote for its attractiveness. In line and in detail, this new two-button notch lapel suit with patch pockets is refreshingly smart. The natural shoulders, full chest and soft rolling lapels will appeal to the young, well-turned out man. This suit is from a Boston shop; for further details, phone Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write in care of the Boston Evening American.

Your Cocktail Hat May Stea Romantic Allure from Star's





LOVELINESS of the noblewomen of Venice and Florence has been immortalized in song and story; and the natural feminine thought is, "Why shouldn't they have been so beautiful, with their glamorous, bejeweled costumes?" The fashion of sleek, fascinating little cocktail and evening hats is going to be a very important one, and any modern maiden who wishes it can steal some thunder from a past romantic age by copying these modernized versions of tiny hats worn by a duchess in Cellini's time. Constance Bennett, who is the Duchess in her current picture, wears two hats which can be "lifted" as they are to accompany after-dark costumes. A heart-shaped bonnet, with the flattering tricorne point in front has delicate ruching under the brim, a lovely frame for the face. Wear it with rich black velvet simply loaded with exquisite lace at the throat and wrists. The Juliet cap, worn on the back of the head, is weighted with an ornament which sends a pendant of rhinestones and an emerald onto the forehead. Flattering!

Hold-Up Play Is First Rule

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

After a beginner at Bridge learns the rank of the cards and the honor-trick table, one of the first things taught to him is the great importance of the hold-up play, the purpose of which is to shut out a hand with established long cards and thus permit the fulfillment of the contract. Practically all players are familiar with this play in its more elementary forms. They know that, holding the Ace and two cards of a suit, the wisest thing is ordinarily to hold up the Ace until the third round. There are other forms of the hold-up play which are more complicated, although the principle upon which they are based is exactly the same.

A somewhat unusual form of the hold-up play is presented on the hand below. Unfortunately, South, the Declarer, had not mastered the principle of the hold-up play sufficiently well to realize that he should be satisfied with one trick in his opponents' suit in order that he might fulfill his contract regardless of the location of honors in other suits.

East and West, vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 N T (1)	Pass	3 N T (2)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) South has no other sound bid at this point. To use the Approach bid of one diamond would be stretching that excellent principle too far.

(2) North, with a nearly solid suit and a probable re-entry, is willing to try for game.

West opened his fourth-best club, the seven. The three was played from Dummy, East played the Queen and South took stock of the situation. If East could be excluded from the lead he held two stoppers in clubs, and being greedy rather than wise, he decided to stake all on finding the King of diamonds in the West hand and went up with the King of clubs. He next led the 10 of diamonds, playing small from Dummy, and East won this trick and returned the deuce of clubs through the Declarer, whereupon West reeled of five club tricks and set the Declarer two tricks.

It is, of course, obvious that South's reasoning was faulty throughout. He did not need more than one trick in clubs, as five diamonds, one club, two spades and one heart total nine in any land or clime. He should have refused to take the chance of adding a futile overtrick to his total and permitted East to hold the first trick with the Queen of Clubs. This play would have guaranteed him the best chance of fulfilling his contract. The desire for an overtrick should never interfere with the safest method of playing a hand.

New Yacht Finish On The Market

There is now a distinctly different kind of marine finish for yachts and pleasure crafts. Actual use on many trans-oceanic and coastwise liners has shown that this new finish fights salt spray and salt air, resists gases and fumes, and is more impermeable to moisture and resistant to marring and scratching. Think of the fun and satisfaction the young or old can get from refinishing the canoe, rowboat, motorboat, or perhaps, small yacht, even though it never gets near the salt water. The quick-drying properties of the finish are also greatly in its favor.

Eggplant for Color and Flavor

By MARTHA LEE

IF YOU ARE looking for color, flavor and cheapness in a vegetable choose eggplant. It is very plentiful now and will be for the next month or so. It is very curious how this attractive vegetable with so many possibilities of variety in preparation is overlooked by shoppers. Eggplant can be fried, broiled, or stuffed and baked. There are many stuffings to choose—lobster, shrimp, beef or tomato.

In choosing eggplant, small or medium sized ones are best. When too large they are apt to be pithy. For slicing and frying the long, cylindrical type of eggplant is preferable to the thicker more chunky varieties. It does not keep well after being cut, so buy the size suited to the needs of the family. An eggplant weighing about one pound yields eleven slices cut ½ inch thick or 4½ cups of diced eggplant or 1¾ cups cooked eggplant diced.

EGGPLANT STUFFED WITH SHRIMP

1 small eggplant.
2 quarts boiling salted water.
1 can wet shrimp.
1 pimiento.
1 small onion.
1 teaspoon pepper.
½ cup tomato juice.
¾ cup bread crumbs.
3 tablespoons butter.

Cut off stem end of eggplant. Cook in boiling salted water to cover 45 minutes or until almost tender. Turn eggplant over occasionally as this vegetable floats and does not stay immersed in water. Cut in half lengthwise and scoop out some of pulp from center and chop finely. Remove black vein from shrimps and chop pimiento and onion. Mix eggplant pulp, shrimp, onion, salt, pepper, tomato juice and ½ cup of bread crumbs. Pack into eggplant shells, cover with remaining crumbs, dot with butter and bake 35 minutes in moderate oven (350 deg. F.)

SAUTEED EGGPLANT

Peel the eggplant and cut it into one-half inch slices. Sprinkle each slice with salt. Pile the slices into a bowl and place a plate on top to weight them down slightly. Let stand for two hours. The salt will draw out any disagreeable flavor. Wipe each slice dry, dip it in crumbs, in beaten egg, and in crumbs again, and saute slowly in hot fat.

CASSEROLE RICE AND EGGPLANT

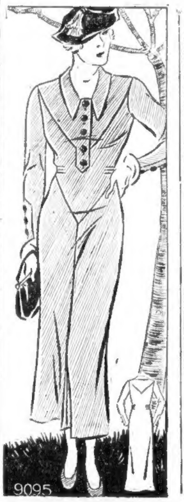
One cup rice; one teaspoon salt; one onion; one pint tomato juice, one quart boiling water; one large eggplant; six tablespoons shortening; buttered crumbs or grated cheese.

Wash the rice thoroughly. Boil it until tender, drain, wash under running hot water and dry quickly in a hot oven or set over boiling water. Use a sieve for the washing and drying. Fry the onion slices in two tablespoons of shortening. Cut the eggplant in one-quarter inch slices. Sprinkle with salt, let stand ten minutes. Drain. Peel and cut into thin wedge shaped pieces. Remove the onion from the pan. Fry the eggplant in the same pan with four tablespoons of shortening. Combine all ingredients in a buttered oven dish. Salt to taste. Add tomato juice. Cover with buttered crumbs or cheese. Heat in oven at 350 deg. for 25 minutes. Enough for six.

BROILED EGGPLANT

Slice the eggplant one-quarter inch thick. Sprinkle each piece with salt and pepper and brush with melted butter. Broil with the meat, turning once when browned.

Horizontal Waistline Tucks



By MARIAN MARTIN

You only have to glance at the drawing to know that the frock will make you look pounds and inches smaller than you really are—and where is the woman to whom that means nothing now-a-days? It is the long V-shaped yoke and the way in which the bodice runs down into the skirt in a slimming V, which turn the trick. In lieu of a belt the frock is held in place at the waistlines by cleverly placed horizontal tucks.

The button tabs at the front and on the sleeve serve as very effective trimming and the low collar is vastly becoming. Stunning in either crepe or sheer wool.

Pattern 9095 may be ordered only in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39-inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern.

Some New Hats Are True to Life

By Annice Brink

PARTY FIXINGS have been used in many a smart new fashion. Nuts and olives for buttons, cocktail colors and names are plentiful, but, for the first time, the aftermath of a party has been immortalized in fabric and feather.

In a Boston shop you may see "The Icebag" hat.

You can all but fill it with ice and use it, the adaptation is that sincere. But it is done so artfully that unless you're in on the secret, you'll just take it for an extraordinarily smart new beret!

Black velvet is used in a round draped tam, a circle of soft grey feathers is placed around a draped center piece that you will recognize as depicting the place where the ice bag is tied up. And the right angle for this hat is one of the easiest ever. Just set it smartly over the brow.

* * *

Donkey drivers in Spain are scheduled for a shock when American lady tourists arrive wearing hats that could be swapped between driver and client without creating a comedy situation.

The donkey driver hat has a straight, sailor brim, and a shallow crown whose gentle curve is lopped off suddenly, and develops a platform-level top. What might well be a tiny brass whip curled into submissiveness is an ornament pinned across the crown.

The peaceful union of the North and South is celebrated in a hat of the soft, greyed Northern blue, with a Confederate soldier's brim and crown. A blue and red cocarde is placed in front.

Blue Velvet For Bridal

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The groom at my wedding is going to wear a business suit. I want the wedding to be informal. It will be the first week in September. I had my mind all set on wearing blue velvet, but then thought that perhaps it would be too formal. I don't want to wear my going-away suit. Please advise me what to wear. D.

If your heart is set on wearing blue velvet at your wedding, I see no reason why you shouldn't do this. The style indications show that this coming year is to be a velvet year, and so, if you get this dress, you will have as "clothes fortification" in your wardrobe an excellent informal dinner dress for the coming winter. You can get a light-weight velvet, and have your dress designed informally . . . then it will be thoroughly appropriate for your informal wedding, and for post-wedding wear.

FIREMEN JOIN MUTUAL AID PLAN

When Malden and Everett fire departments formally put into operation their mutual aid system today it will mark the complete interweaving of the fire departments of all suburbs north of Boston into one unit.

Exercises marking the completion of the system in which Chief William J. [illegible] of Malden and Chief James E. [illegible] of Everett, firemen from both cities and state and local officers will participate were to take place at Malden Central Fire station.

Boundary line boxes which Malden and Everett apparatus both formerly answered will now be answered only by the department of the city in which the boxes are located. Apparatus will move from one city to another only on second and subsequent alarms under the new plan. The boundary line boxes proved the bone of contention which caused the rift between Malden and Everett three years ago.

Through the mutual aid plan any suburban community having a two-alarm fire automatically becomes the center of the mutual aid system. If a third alarm or a fourth is sounded more apparatus moves towards the fire center. Should two serious fires occur in two communities at the same time the movement of apparatus towards the fires would automatically divide itself into two groups.

Cold Storage Balancing

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Looks like the budget will be balanced by cold storage financing.

Mr. Morgenthau has three billion gold profit under lock and key. It's salted away in lavender and moth balls.

It would be much nicer if Mr. Morgenthau could balance the budget outdoors.

Still, letting the government money run loose as sawdust ain't always so good.

Mr. Ickes couldn't sleep for two nights on a rough railroad that had borrowed millions to make itself smooth.

Mr. Ickes had approved the loan while he was awake. Maybe the railroad wanted to keep him awake so he could approve another one.

SYNOPSIS

Lovely, young Cathleen McCartny tries to discourage the attentions of Seward Ingram, her employer's son, because of social barriers, but he insists on seeing her. Seward presents Cathleen with an expensive bracelet. She plans to return it, but her shiftless brother, Joe, steals the bracelet and pawns it for $300. For the first time in his career, Jasper Ingram's financial throne is threatened. Just as he is trying to raise several million dollars, his wife, ignorant of the crisis, asks for half a million to purchase the Russian royal rubies. Ingram refuses and his wife secretly plans a loan.

To add to the financier's difficulties, Arline Martin, an actress, plans to sue Ingram on a false charge, for not financing her play. Homer Alspaugh, Ingram's confidential secretary, speculates with his employer's money in the hope of securing funds to meet his faithless wife's extravagance. Marian Alspaugh is having an affair with the Marques d'Alhues. On a picnic with Seward, Cathleen, unable to tell him the truth about the bracelet, says she must return it, inferring that she still has it.

CHAPTER XXI

"It would be great to be a gypsy going on and on," said Cathleen. "In a little while you could be tramping these hills, coming back where we are now. Father says Ireland is so much more beautiful than the United States there's no comparison at all. But this place [illegible] makes your heart ache with beauty. I don't see how anything could be lovelier and if it were, I couldn't bear it."

"How much of this country has your father seen?" asked Seward.

"New York City and a piece of the south-west of Long Island."

"I baked it," she said with simple pride.

"Gosh, what a wife you'd make!"

"For a poor man," she agreed, laughing.

"Why should poor men have all the luck?"

"To make up for being poor, of course."

"If a man were young and healthy and had you for a wife, I wouldn't call him poor," said Seward.

"MONEY IS QUEER"

"Money is queer," she mused. "So all-important, so unimportant. If someone were sick and the doctors could do nothing, or if you loved someone and he didn't love you, you wouldn't give a snap of your fingers for pecks of money. But those are the great events of life—dying and falling in love, and between them are stretches when money seems to mean just everything. Why, look at the world today! So much suffering because everything has gone wrong with money, and there's nobody has the wit to set it right. Men starving because there's too much food—Were you ever hungry, Mr. Seward?"

"Not any hungrier than I was about half an hour ago. The way I've wolfed your lunch. What about calling me Seward, by the way?" he demanded.

"I will, if you say so. It's awkward when there are two Mr. Ingrams—to have the same name mean such different persons! And Mr. Seward does sound a little silly."

"I am different from my father in lots of ways—I mean, I think sons are generally more like their mothers. Of course, I know he's a big man and I'm nobody except his son. . . . But I'd rather be myself than he. I'm glad to be starting right now. We'll see how things come out, you and I. The world may be a mess, but it's a darned interesting period all the same."

"Isn't it!" Cathleen exclaimed. "I've felt that too when my father and mother were groaning and wishing for the good old times back."

"Some day people may be calling these the good old times," laughed Seward. "We'd better enjoy ourselves though, while we can. It's peaceful enough here, isn't it?"

They could see a white road climbing the ridge opposite them. It curved and disappeared beckoningly. They reached it by a short cut across the pasture-land. It was good to swing along between hedges, good to reach a bridge across a wide brook and lean on the rail to watch its waters parting over the stones, spreading into a pool below. There were bitter-sweet berries hanging on a stone wall.

OUT OF THE PAST

And Seward picked them for Cathleen. They came to a deserted farm-house and explored it. There was no door and the stairs were rotten, but it was a spooky delight to invade the ruined rooms where simple people had once lived.

A mile farther on, a railway track crossed the road and they turned along it for the childish fun of walking on the rails. Neither could manage it, until Seward suggested that they take hands. After that it was easy and there were few missteps. It was good to hold hands like that, with no sentimental implication, Cathleen thought.

Feeling her hand firm and friendly in his, Seward knew a rare contentment and would have liked to go on indefinitely walking hand in hand with her. He was aware, subconsciously, of the comfort of this mutual steadying of two walking [illegible] parallel paths so [illegible] reaching to the same end, symbolic, it seemed to him.

A chill in the air, a gradual change in the light, made him at last step reluctantly to the ties. His wrist watch showed four o'clock.

"Have to be turning back now, I'm afraid. It's a long walk to where we left the car, and quite a drive home from there."

Cathleen drew a long regretful breath. "Our beautiful day is nearly over! But we have the going back still."

"You like it then? So do I, a lot. Let's do it again soon, shall we? I know very few girls, if any, who would care to put in a day with me just like this," he said.

"It's been like heaven to me. What more could anybody want, I wonder?" she said.

"BEEN LIKE HEAVEN"

"They don't think they're having a good time unless money's being spent on them," Seward declared with a rich youth's cynicism. "They want to be dancing, or going somewhere in a crowd. That is free, so it's no good."

"I don't know what one could buy with money that would be any better than to see beautiful country in pleasant company." She smiled frankly into his eyes.

"The best things in life have got nothing to do with money, and that's the truth," said Seward, suddenly making this stupendous discovery. He had heard the axiom before, but it had meant nothing to him. "Out-doors, fine weather, youth, health, and friendship. And I suppose, love. All these things have nothing to do with money and they're the things that count most in the end."

"And religion!" Cathleen added, a little shocked at his omitting that.

"I'm afraid I'm not awfully strong on religion," he said awkwardly. "Well, here's our road."

Just ahead of them the track crossed a dirt road, and they stepped off the rails and turned up it. They now followed a country road, running between bright banks and flanked by meadows and woodlands, for a mile or so. Then Seward stopped and wrinkled his straight nose in an engaging expression of uncertainty.

"I don't remember that farmhouse ahead of us, do you? It seems to me we ought to have passed that graveyard before now!"

"We'd have noticed that red barn, I'm sure," said Cathleen. But how could we possibly miss the road?"

INQUIRY IS VAIN

"We were trying so hard to keep on the rails—that must have been it! This may be a road we didn't notice. On the other hand, maybe we're right, and simply didn't notice this place when we passed it." He hesitated, frowning. "I wonder if we better go back or keep on? Even if this is a different road, it seems bound to hit the highway sooner or later. Chances are it would be shorter to keep on it, now we've come so far!"

"We could ask at the farmhouse," suggested Cathleen, but there was no one at home at the farmhouse except a deaf old woman from whom they could learn nothing.

Seward decided that their best course was to push on. "Much more interesting to go back a different way. I'm glad we made the mistike! Look at that hillside with the sun lighting up all those birches. Looks like a fire, doesn't it? he said.

They walked on, braced by the increasing coolness as the sun dropped. They had lost it now from the gray rutted track ahead of them, though it still gilded the distant flank of the hill.

KELLYS O.K.

—REPLACE WORN TIRES WITH NEW KELLYS FOR YOUR LABOR DAY TRIP, AND FOR SAFE WINTER DRIVING

FOUR years ago, Kelly engineers foresaw today's driving conditions: Streamline cars with high speeds. More horsepower in motors. Thicker traffic—with sudden starts and stops.

They designed a new type of tire, Kelly-Springfield Fatigue-proofs, with safety at six vital points. These great new tires have been on the roads for two years now. They have piled up amazing new mileage records. Kelly users are enthusiastic about America's first modern tire. Look at these six big features:

1 Vitalized Rubber—deeper, thicker treads to keep giving you non-skid protection after ordinary treads have worn slick.
2 Gum-inforced Plies—rubber-impregnated under tons of pressure, practically indestructible, making every ply a safety ply.
3 Corkscrew Cotton—spiral fibers that give Kelly cords more lasting strength and elasticity.
4 Prime Materials used throughout.
5 Monitor System—factory control that checks every material and process.
6 Fatigue-proof wear—improved processes originated by Kelly two years ago that give these great new tires record-breaking mileage and long life.

Why spend good money on an "experimental" tire, when you can get genuine Kellys for the same price! They give you longer wear. Greater non-skid. More blowout protection. And always the finest quality.

Be sure to see the nearest Kelly-Springfield dealer for lowest prices before buying any make of tire. They can be had for as little as

GLACIER PARK CAMPER LOST

Glacier National Park, Mont., Aug. 30—Search is being made for Dr. F. H. Lumley, of Columbus, Ohio, whose unclaimed baggage recently was found at Many Glacier Hotel.

Lumley was last heard from August 13 at Goathaunt camp at the head of Waterton Lake when he left there with Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Owen of Cambridge, Mass., on a planned hike to Crossley Lake camp 17 miles distant.

Later on August 13 park officials said the Owens registered at the Crossley camp but subsequent attempts to reach them have so far proven vain.

Provision is being made this fall to take care of 138,000 boys and girls in all grades of the Boston school system.

The commissioner denied reports that dress reform for the army has been under consideration. He said the council was not discussing [illegible] of that kind.

"Certainly—you! Now, that's an Old Gold cigarette—understand?"

"Uh huh."

"Be quiet and listen, will you? Now, Old Golds are made from pure tobacco, see? Nothing but the choicest and mildest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, see? So naturally they not only taste better but they keep the throat free from irritation. Throat-ease is important to anybody!—especially to a celebrated screen artist such as . . . er . . ."

"Who—me?"

"Certainly not! But you will be a happier smoker when your throat gets the thrill of 'smooth as satin' Old Golds."

Mr. Hardy might have put it this way, Mr. Laurel: No better tobacco grows than is used in Old Gold. And it's pure. (No artificial flavoring.) That's why Old Golds are easy on THROAT and NERVES.

DETECTIVES ON KILLER COLD TRAIL

This Is Life
ROBERT E. ROGERS

Mr. Joseph Hergesheimer, who, like Little Buttercup, is a plump and pleasing person and who, unlike Little Buttercup, can write quite skillfully in the prose style of the late Henry James, tosses a perfumed raspberry in the current Saturday Evening Post at the British Broadcasting Company, the official monopoly of the air in Great Britain. It is delicate, it is mannered, it is periodic, but there is a bit of fun in it and it does get its point over with a good deal of specific illustration.

Robert E. Rogers

His title "[illegible] on the Air"—which is almost as applicable to Mr. Hergesheimer's own style as to the B. B. C.'s—implies that the British ideal of radio (which they call "wireless") is rather too gently and determinedly aesthetic for the average American's taste. Even for the taste of one who, like Mr. Hergesheimer, is certainly not an average American but who does like the kind of music most of us seem to like.

British radio entertainment is not supported by advertising, as with us, nor by competing private companies. It is virtually a government monopoly supported by licensing charges of ten shillings per year per private wireless set. Its programs are deliberately "uplifting" and its censorship of controversial and political material is polite but firm. Even George Bernard Shaw has felt the firm hand of the B. B. C.

* * *

Mr. Hergesheimer quotes, somewhat, ironically, from the report of the head of the B. B. C company in its Year Book for 1933

"I am as certain as anything that to set out to give the public what it wants is dangerous and a fallacious policy, involving almost always the underestimation of the public's intelligence and a continual lowering of standards . . . It is surely clear that a body constituted as the British Broadcasting Company (sic) cannot in any case be content merely to give the public what it is conscious of wanting. Though it cannot be indifferent to known wants, it simply cannot cater to them in the spirit of a grocer-serving packets of tea."

One or two other bits of information interested our Pennsylvanian Stendhal. The B. B. C. had not the slightest interest in knowing how its programs were going over. It deprecated correspondence. It did not expect letters and it did not want letters. Even if no one listened, the B. B. C. would go right ahead with its classical, high-brow, tasteful, intelligent programs, most of which Mr. H seems to have listened to with growing respect and equally gnawing boredom and dismay. The two attitudes are not necessarily incommensurable.

The other point The B. B. C. believes that verbal wit alone has never greatly appealed to British audiences. "Broadcasting is not the ideal medium for the comedian." Consequently the British have almost nothing to listen to of the style that furnishes our own unquestionably most popular radio hours.

Think what our radio would be like—nay rather, think what our radio IS like during the summer' without Ed Wynn Der Baron Amos and Andy, Will Rogers Jack Benny, and the gentleman, whose name for the moment escapes me, who wishes one to purchase a duck. Not all of them please all the customers but each one of them alone must please a large section of the community Without them radio would be almost as drear as Hergesheimer finds it to be in England

"The announced condescension of English broadcasting, the satisfaction in its implied superiority to an American commercial and tasteless spirit, was very far from any protest that it existed wholly to serve the public. It was difficult for me, it was difficult for the public to regard music in a purely moral and educational manner. I did not, specifically, want to be raised by it (N. B. he means uplifted). Men returning with the evening, worn with labor, women exhausted with endless toil, were happier with a jig, a broad and even vulgar texture of humor, than with a thin, improving trickle of censored sound. Life robbed of a healthy vulgarity soon lost its vital being."

Amen and amen! Incidentally, considering how long Mr. Hergesheimer has toiled painfully reconstructing the mood and tense and glamour of long-vanished American society, he is still an admirable reporter of the factual present. This article is almost a painfully detailed analysis of the B B. C., its set-up and its programs. But, as always, his facts are flavored with a full-blown Epicurean's philosophy.

In these days with public control always impending over every means of public information and amusement, our two great chains might do much worse than to buy the reprint rights of Hergesheimer's article and spread copies far and wide over the land to everyone who has a radio, is thinking of buying a radio, or merely wants a radio—in short to the population of America. It would be money in radio's pocket eventually.

HULTMAN PUTS POLICEWOMAN ON PHONES

In an order that amazed her associates, Policewoman Irene McAuliffe was detached today from the detective bureau at police headquarters and assigned to the bureau of operations as a telephone operator.

The shelving of Miss McAuliffe, first policewoman in Massachusetts and a Boston woman detective for 13 years, was accompanied by silence on the part of Police Commissioner Hultman and Superintendent Martin H. King.

Miss McAuliffe

Neither did any of their immediate officers profess to know the reason for Miss McAuliffe's being placed in a purely routine job, one to which she is not accustomed.

SENT TO SCHOOL

The order detailing her to the switchboard sent her first to the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. school for operators in Beach street, as the woman detective knows not even the rudiments of switchboard operation.

Since Irene McAuliffe first became a policewoman back in 1915 she has become internationally known in her chosen profession and in 1924 she was sent abroad by the late Police Superintendent Michael H Crowley to study police systems in the old world cities

Her first [illegible] was on the force of her late father Chief Patrick McAuliffe of Weston, where she was a regular member of the department.

NO NEED FOR OPERATORS

After the war she took a course in police work at Washington under Washington police department officials and when she returned she was appointed to the Boston police department as the first policewoman

The puzzle at police headquarters today was to find an answer to the McAuliffe shift in view of the fact that only recently Mrs. Mar[illegible] [illegible] who [illegible] operator before her appointment, was shifted off the switchboard because there were sufficient operators.

At the same time another telephone operator at headquarters, a woman civilian, was let go because this force was overstaffed

Morgan Memorial Holds Last Outing

Rev. Ro[illegible] Culpepper reports that Morgan Memorial has furnished 2250 daily outings this season.

Auto Hurts Allston Man

Adlow Dubrey, 40, of Commonwealth avenue, Allston, suffered a fracture of the skull when struck by an auto which was entering the driveway at his home. The auto was operated by Douglas A. Snow, of Mountvale road, Newton Center.

MRS. EBELL NOW COMFORTS SICK DAUGHTER

Mrs. Helen Castle Ebell and Louis Goldsmith, released on bail in New London, Ct, where they were held on charges connected with the death of Hans Ebell, Brookline musician and divorced husband of Mrs. Ebell, were back in Brookline today for the first time since their incarceration.

Goldsmith was charged with manslaughter, following Ebell's death in an altercation over the couple's eight-year-old daughter, Helen Alice. Mrs. Ebell was accused of attempting to kidnap the child

Today little Helen Alice, innocent cause of the tragedy, was reported seriously ill at the home of her grandmother and guardian, Mrs. Agnes Castle, in Center street, Brookline.

Mrs. Ebell and Goldsmith made the trip from Connecticut to Brookline in the auto from the running board of which Ebell fell to his death on August 15.

RADIO IN AUTO WARNS THIEF

When police sent a radio message warning cruising cars to be on the lookout for a stolen automobile on Dover street, South End, the occupants of the car decided that things were getting a little too hot for them.

They ditched the car at the side of Dover street where Patrolmen Gallagher and Morrison, riding in a cruising car, found it a few minutes after the radio message was sent out

While Morrison was examining the car another police message greeted his ears from a radio installed in the car. The auto, owned by Albert S. Livermore, of Naples, Me., and the Hotel Lincoln, N. Y., was stolen on Shawmut avenue.

Boys in Show on Common

"Step right up, Ladeez and Gentlemen See them! See them! See them! Positively the only ones in captivity . . ."

The shouting of the barkers, the clatter of the clowns, the music of the band, every ingredient of the greatest show on earth—they were all there, even to the daring young man on the flying trapeze.

An audience of [illegible] hundred proud mothers and as many more awed small brothers and sisters clapped and cheered as 500 boys of all ages staged their most successful circus right on Boston Common.

Park Commissioner William P. Long was on hand to congratulate the youngsters, too.

The House of the Angel Guardian Band provided the music, and boys from 31 playgrounds throughout the city put on a mammoth, thrilling stupendous, program of stunts. It was more fun than the circus.

Probers Puzzled by Lynn Mystery

Lynn police continued, without success today, their investigation seeking to determine whether Edward J. Kane, 36, of Wardwell avenue, fell or was thrown into the 35-foot rubbish shaft of a Mount Vernon street garage, where he was found yesterday. Kane is still unconscious in Lynn Hospital, having suffered a fractured skull and lacerations that required 31 stitches.

'She' Makes Good Nurse

BERNARD HARRINGTON MELVIN SMITH

FIRST AID—Gee, a fellow doesn't mind being hurt just a little with such a beautiful Red Cross nurse about. The "injured" fellow is Melvin Smith. RUM RUNNERS FACE DRIVE

Ghosts of prohibition days walked again today as the Coast Guard prepared for a new drive against smugglers of liquor and narcotics along the New England coast.

Captain Cecil Gabbett, of the New England division of the Coast Guard was appointed co-ordinator of the efforts of the Coast Guard, narcotic bureau, customs service and revenue bureau

The great increase in liquor smuggling, which has alarmed Washington, is attributed to the desire of bootleggers to move liquor made especially for the prohibition trade and which was refused entrance to the country after repeal. Withdrawal of the Coast Guard patrol from the coast has made rum-running easy, it was admitted.

POLICE WAR ON HIJACK RING

State police were mobilized today against the renewed threat of cigarette hijackers, four of whom tried in vain to steal a $20,000 cargo from a truck in Melrose last night.

The attempt failed in that city because the driver of the truck shouted so loudly that he attracted attention of residents and scared away his assailants, one of whom wielded a sawed-off shotgun.

Officials saw in the Melrose holdup the revival of an underworld industry that was extremely profitable to the thieves up to a few months ago. They suspected that the robbers were from Maine

This belief was based on the breakup of an alleged cigarette hijack gang, which has been operating near Bangor. Officials surmised that the remainder of that gang had returned to this state.

KING, SCHWARTZ QUIT HORAN INQUIRY

With resentment among detectives and special officers, trained crime hunters, almost at the open point [illegible], Superintendent Martin H. King and Attorney Leo Schwartz, legal adviser to Commissioner Hultman, finally relinquished today their two-man probe of the Horan murder case.

From now on, but with the trail cold, the detectives and special officers who it is declared, should have been allowed investigation of the case, have carte blanche in attempting to run down the killers

Since John J Horan was shot down and robbed in his Massachusetts avenue filling station the trained detectives, although often assigned to the case as investigators, claim they have been ignored in the real work and have been used principally as errand boys.

MUST START AGAIN

Although the cross-examination of crime suspects in past cases by detectives has brought numerous confessions, they have not even been allowed to question suspects in the Horan case, it is asserted.

Superintendent King and Attorney Schwartz have done most of the cross-examination work and the detectives themselves are even in the dark as to the outcome of the questionings, it is known

Today's relinquishing of the case will allow the detectives and special officers, all of whom know the murder district and questionable characters within the boundaries, to work "on their own," but they will have to go back to the beginning and start all over again.

ONLY ONE SUSPECT

The detectives and special officers will now work under Captain James R. Claflin, the division captain who, up to now, has been merely "consulted," it is alleged.

So far, despite the more than 20 persons questioned, police apparently have arrived nowhere in the solution of the brutal murder and robbery.

Only one of the 20 remained in custody early today and police admitted they were not certain they had a strong case against him. Five others of the suspects gathered are held in $1000 each for trial next week in municipal court, but for [illegible].

Two Captured in Drug Store

Captured at gun point, two men were arrested by four Brookline police officers this morning after they had been found in the Beacon-Carleton Drug Company at Beacon and Carlton streets, Brookline.

The men will appear in Brookline Municipal Court on a charge of breaking and entering in the night time. They are Joseph Murphy, 19, of Massachusetts avenue, San Francisco, Cal., and Thomas McKeon, 20, of Athens street, South Boston.

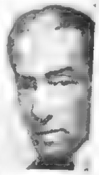
O. O. McIntyre
NEW YORK
DAY BY DAY

New York, Aug. 30.—With [illegible] Fisher married and residing in California, [illegible] drafted to Hollywood and Wilson Mizner gone from the mortal scene, there seems [illegible] in New York keen wit for flinging the bright quip. They were the three unfailing pegs.



O. O. McIntyre

Somehow it gave a gag especial pungence to preface it as coming from one of these three. As a result thousands of sallies and wisecracks credited to them were not their handiwork at all. Though each had a pronounced flair for the devastating mot.

As a matter of fact many of Broadway's choicest puns dusted off a bit, have been spawned by Frisco and Roger Davis, an indifferent actor who acts as a sort of personal clown for Fannie Brice. Eugene Kelcey Allen, dramatic critic for a garment daily, also sponsored swift ones credited to others.

There has been a distinct falling off in this crackling form of humor since vaudeville went into eclipse and the majority of curbstone comedians became highly paid gag men in the movies. The old-time barroom too was a hive for stinging remarks that convulsed the town.

Nothing is quite so lonesome looking as a lonely boy on a quietly aristocratic New York residential street. As a rule he has no playmate in the entire block and, so great is the fear of kidnaping, someone is always watching him. I saw one today in E. 86th standing beside a fire plug digging a toe in the sidewalk and looking vacantly nowhere. "Why aren't you in the country?" I asked. His reply was direct. "Papa hasn't money any more," he said.

Statistics show that invitation audiences to radio broadcasts do more than anything else to cement the artist's most valuable asset fans. People who see a broadcaster at work are not likely to miss dialing in for months to come. Ed Wynn likes to watch others broadcast. So do Amos 'n Andy

John Held, Jr., one of the few successful combinations of writer and artist. His books have fair sale, his short stories and articles are in demand and he never manages to keep up with orders for drawings of his cut-up collegiates. Harlem now has a negro columnist whose pieces appear under the heading, "This Hectic Harlem" in the Black Belt's leading gazette, the Amsterdam News. His name is Roy Ottley and the quarter hails him as Harlem's Mark Hellinger. He writes of the highlights and shadows of the main arteries—Seventh and Lenox avenues—and has quite a knack for the graphic. Already his year's collection of stories are to be published in book form under the quaint enough title: "One Year in a Coal Bin."

Ben Bernie is one of the few broadcasters to use restraint about family affairs. Only intimates know of his singular devotion to a 16-year-old son in a military academy. His references to the lad are adroit such as the time Ed Wynn and son were dining at the place where Bernie appeared in Chicago He intrdouced Wynn and especially extolled Wynn's son as one of the most remarkable boys of the day, a fine athlete, a fine this and a fine that. But as he wound up he exclaimed: "If Culver is listening in, I'm only kidding." That was a revealing little touch of sentiment for his boy but not many knew it.

Bagatelles: Mrs. Morris Gest has never stepped foot in the now sold Belasco theater since her father died . . . Marilyn Miller is reputed America's richest actress . . . Elsie Robinson's serial, "I Wanted Out," drew more fan mail than any other written in 20 years . . . George Raft once played drums in an orchestra . . . Peter B. Kyne removed 15 pounds recently, writing a novel . . . Luther Reed has finished a biography of his friend Joseph Urban . . . Mary Boland uses the longest cigarette holder in Hollywood . . . Winston Churchill is an expert bag puncher.

Readers often—well, two did anyway—ask how one measures a column. How to know the number of words. They seem to think it a trade trick. It isn't. A fellow just somehow has a feeling he's said enough. And there, by gum, is the end of the column.

BABY BOY BORN WITH 2 TEETH

An eleven pound son has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Allen McVarish of Beale street, Dorchester with two fully developed lower front teeth, and two other lowers threatening to pierce the gums within a few days.

Obstetricians considered the appearance of the teeth, highly unusual, stating that five to six months usually elapses between birth and the appearance of the first teeth.

According to the parents, who have six other children, the baby is healthy and normal.

TAXI DRIVER IS HELD IN DEATH

John J. Mulcahey, 35, of East Eighth street, South Boston, was held after police investigated the death of William J. Kishkis, Jr., 27, of Gold street, South Boston.

According to police, Mulcahey's cab hit Kishkis with such force that dent was made in the steel frame of the machine. Kishkis was dead on his arrival at the Carney Hospital.

Cool and Calm Loveliness

Ann Harding, whose blonde beauty shines in "The Fountain," screen adaptation of the famous Charles Morgan novel, which comes to the Keith-Memorial on Saturday.

Fall Film Fare at Keith's

New fall bookings at the Keith-Memorial theater have been announced for the coming weeks, with five of the outstanding film productions [illegible] in the season.

Ann Harding in "The Fountain," screen adaptation of the Charles Morgan best-seller, will inaugurate the new program, with the widely acclaimed short subject "La Cucaracha" on the same bill. The following week brings the United Artists production of "The Count of Monte Cristo," featuring in its all star cast Robert Donat, Elissa Landi, Louis Calhern, Sidney Blackmer, O. P. Heggie and Irene Hervey.

Other films scheduled for an early showing at the Memorial are "The Age of Innocence," starring Irene Dunne and John Boles; "The Gay Divorcee," with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, and Barrie's "The Little Minister," starring Katharine Hepburn.

Harold Lloyd's Film Features New Screen Program

The newest and most notable of the fall pictures come to Boston's first run theaters today, tomorrow and Saturday.

At the Paramount and Fenway Harold Lloyd returns today to the screen after a long absence in "The Cat's Paw," adapted from the widely read novel of the same name by Clarence Budington Kelland. For the first time in his movie career the comedian has turned to a published story for his [illegible] material and the reports are that his particular style of [illegible] never had better [illegible] than in this highly [illegible] of Ezekiel Cobb, a [illegible] raised in China who [illegible] to his home town to find a wife. Selected as the figurehead for a gang of corrupt politicians, he is elected mayor, and is determined to conduct the honorable office in a manner to reflect credit to himself and his ancestors. Una Merkel and a cast of film favorites appear in Lloyd's support.

The new double feature program opening [illegible] at the Keith-Boston brings Adolphe Menjou to the screen in "The Human Side," a strong and dramatic story of marriage and divorce with Doris Kenyon featured opposite the star.

At the Fine Arts today, "Trapeze," one of the earlier films starring Anna Sten, is featured on a new double program. "Trapeze" is a product of E. A. Dupont, who made "Variety" one of the notable of the silent films with Emil Jannings and Lya de Putti. On the same bill is a return engagement of the British film, "Rome Express," co-starring Esther Ralston and Conrad Veidt.

At the State tomorrow Fredric March and Constance Bennett co-star in "The Affairs of Cellini," an adaptation from the stage success "The Firebrand." Frank Morgan and Fay Wray top an excellent supporting cast in the elaborate production.

Howard's Bill

Wilma Horner

On the bill with the popular comedian is a group of stars which includes Wilma Horner, Joan Collette, Eddie Lloyd, Sue Fee Hayworth, Marie Andrews, Nora Morris, [illegible] Lucky Condo and Allen Walsh and Wide and a chorus of more than 30 [illegible] dancers.

There will be three complete shows at the Old Howard daily, at 12, 2 30 and 8 15, and the first of the midnight shows is scheduled for Sunday at 12 01.

MEDFORD CLERK WINS FIGHT ON PAPERS

[illegible] of the Massachusetts City and Town Clerks Association and founder of the New England City Clerks Association and Senator David I. Walsh [illegible] which formerly followed the loss of citizenship papers [illegible] have been largely overcome through enactment of changes in the federal laws.

Where it formerly cost $10 for a duplicate set besides a trip to the court where the citizen was naturalized, the fee is now cut to $1 and the papers may be renewed by satisfactory proof in the nearest naturalization court with a minimum of delay.

Further progress is expected to be made by which a photostatic copy of registration papers may be made [illegible]

Senator Walsh first took hold of the project when the city clerks pointed out that in most instances people who lost citizenship papers were those who could least afford to replace them, people who could not afford safety deposit boxes to hold them but who were obliged to carry them around in their pockets with consequent wear and [illegible]

And he also likes dancing . . . And likes to remember his stay at the Havana Casino . . . Where he danced with Nancy Carroll . . . Who was resting between pictures . . . But who got little rest while Don was there.

He has frequent inquiries . . . From people who want to know the name of his theme song . . . Which consists of a few strains from Beethoven [illegible]

Cracker Barrel Comic Heads Cast

By N. F. T.

These last few weeks haven't found the weekly Rudy Vallee hour (WEEI) of microphone variety much more than mediocre. Tonight, however, the well known sixty minute studio show should shape up something like it's old top notch character. First of all, there's the good old nasal twanged comedian, Charley "Chick" Sale.

Charley "Chick" Sale

Just about every time I start wondering why the subtle Sale isn't injected into the radio program picture oftener, up he pops as a guest artist with said Vallee presentation. Advance advice is to the effect that "Chic" will bring his general store up for a setting through which his country bumpkin comedy is to run. Rudy has just added "School[illegible] Rowe, the American League pitching sensation. Home folks in El Dorado, Arkansas, where the Detroit hurler hails from, will be all ears. Also an attraction of no mean proportion, is the Val and Ernie Stanton team, with their "daffy" English comedy. Lou Holtz and his stooge "Aloysius Hare" likewise have a place, as does Jeanne Aubert, the sophisticated musical comedy songstress.

Angelica, Cellini's Only Real Love

By FAITH BALDWIN

MEET IN ROME

But Beatrice was more than a match for him. She sailed—and with Angelica, by Ostia, another route. Cellini himself says, "I followed them to Civita Vecchia and did a multitude of mad things to discover her. It would be too long to narrate them all in detail, enough that I was on the point of losing my wits or dying."

HAPPINESS TOLD

[illegible] they were Sicilians he could not say.

REUNITED

[illegible] wished [illegible] Angelica to Rome, Bea[illegible]

Angelica, guessing her lover to be [illegible] extravagant mood, reminded [illegible] velvet was cheap in [illegible] might she have enough for a [illegible] gown? Cellini, amor[illegible]

[illegible] that one may drive too hard a bargain, decided that she too wanted a gown of fine stuffs as well as a sum of money for her two grown sons who Cellini considered, perhaps rightly, should share in her support.

Thirty ducats was not, it seemed, enough.

LOVE ENDS

A moment before [illegible] desperately in love with Angelica and willing to make any sacrifice for her possession; but in the next he had ceased to love her.

He could haggle with princes for the price of a jewel or a statue intricately carved from fine gold but this bargaining in the name of love was too much. Besides Angelica [illegible] —exactly like her mother.

Thus it ended. He snatched Angelica to him and kissed her profoundly and [illegible] at once, a free man, for Rome.

Gulliver of Sox Leaves on Travels Baer's Aspirin ↕ The Horse Gets Credit Johnson Pats Self on Back; Latest Mat Fad

By AUSTEN LAKE

Austen Lake

NO PIG-IN-THE-POKE BUYER is Edward Trowbridge Collins, head spender for the Red Sox firm. When a scout wires in a gawdy account of some youngster in the deep tangled wildwood, Eddie will not scratch off a check and order him shipped. Land sakes No! Eddie mooches off on a lone wolf prowl to take a first hand look.

He travelled 15,000 miles last summer, out as far as the Pacific Coast and down as low as the Carolinas, to measure certain horse-and-buggy league athletes. He is sudden that way, so that he'll slide out of his office, leaving a sucking sound from the vacuum of his sudden departure. The office force does not know where he's gone. He's just "out."

So tomorrow night Eddie is galloping off on a secret three weeks tour. He'll wind around the haystack towns of the South, explore the Mississippi Valley, safari across the Rocky Mountains and slide down the sun kissed slopes of California.

Because, between now and September 10, when the cover goes on all minor league buying, Eddie has 15 to 20 young prospects to spy out.

No minor league player, including Moose Solters, Fritz Ostermueller or Mel Almada, has been added by the Red Sox, without Eddie seeing him first. Incidentally Almada, who is a Mexican youth, picked up from Seattle last year and farmed to Kansas City, is joining the Sox at Philadelphia this week.

MAYBE THE STATE BOXING COMMISSIONS should install saliva tests, now in universal use at the horse tracks, for their prize fighters.

Leastwise Max Baer, or Adlepate Adelbert, recently made public mention of the fact he had not felt very good for two days after the Carnera fight, because of the dose of strychnine he was fed before the match.

He says now this was a slip of the tongue, that instead of strychnine, he meant a blend of cherry wine and spirits of ammonia. Maybe it was Baer's aspirin.

I suspect he spoke correctly in the first place. Because the use of "eagle soup," as is the professional sport term for high powered stimulants, is in common use among money athletes. The six-day bicycle riders are always fed dynamited broth during the latter stages.

Up until recently some football coaches served their teams caffein between the halves. It was no secret that in the last Olympics at Los Angeles many foreign athletes were pepped up with drugs—particularly the Japanese swimmers.

Strychnine is a nerve and heart stimulant. The maximum dose for average people is one-sixtieth of a grain, although large men in top condition can assimilate one-fortieth of a grain without causing convulsions.

Contrary to Baer's statement, doctors tell me there is no after effect, such as headache and nervous slump.

HARRY UNNA, THE HORSE TRAINER WHO shuttles his animals from Rockingham to Narragansett and now back to Rockingham again, is frank in saying that the horse makes the trainer and the jockey, and rarely the other way round.

Like human athletes, he states, either the horse inherently has it or he has not, meaning legs and courage. The horse makes the trainer and the trainer makes the jockey.

This is true of major league baseball and of college football as well. The players make the manager and the coach.

Take for example the case of Howard Jones, fired by Yale and fired by Iowa State, until finally he moved to Southern California, where the Chamber of Commerce and a city-proud community handpicked his material and supplied funds.

A TOLEDO SCALE COMPANY, for some curious reason, has been weighing the bats of major league ball clubs. Only Bill Terry, in keeping with his waspish attitude toward outsiders, refused to let the company's researchers touch the Giants' bats, "as long as they were still hitting the ball."

It was found that Detroit, leading the American League with an average of .305—only major league club above the mystic .300 line—uses bats that average 34.32 ounces, lightest in the league.

Heaviest bat in the majors today is that used by little Andy High, 43½ ounces. Bob Worthington of the Braves comes next with a stick that weighs 41 ounces. Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig clubs are both 38 ounce weapons. Lightest is that used by Rabbit Maranville, 32 ounces.

Sporting goods firms tell me that the sticks have been growing gradually lighter during the last ten years. Managers say that lighter bats are easier to handle, mean more basehits.

* * *

WALTER JOHNSON, USUALLY MODEST and retiring where his old prowess is concerned, has just said that his own fast ball, at the height of his career, was better than "Lefty" Grove's in the latter's zenith. He thinks his ball had a higher "hop," as they call the little upward rise of an inch or two which comes from sheer speed.

Some years ago the Remington Arms Co. of Bridgeport, measured Johnson's speed on the velocity machine they use to gauge the flight of bullets. His fastest was 122 feet a second. Average speed of run-of-the-mill pitchers was something under 114 f. p. s. Grove's speed has never been measured.

LATEST FAD IN WRESTLING SCENARIOS is to have former heavyweight boxing champions as the middleman and permit them to heighten the dramatic effect by punching one of the balky human walruses on the chin. Jack Dempsey has done it twice, and Tuesday night at Mechanics Building, Jack Sharkey, in his Boston debut as wrestling referee, knocked out Tony Papolino when he refused to break an illegal hold.

All clean amusement and no grudges. Yet it is amazing, isn't it, what a man will do to earn a dollar?

VAIL SAUNDERS MARQUARD PORTER CHANOVE

Rube Marquard holds the modern record for successive games won—19. He turned the trick in 1912 when he was with the Giants. While Schoolboy Rowe was failing in his bid to break the American League record of 16 straight, Rube was showing his favorite jockeys how he did it two decades ago. The Masters Vail, Saunders, Porter and Chanove weren't born when Rube was compiling his record. But they've heard plenty about it since. Rube is working on the mutuel windows at Narragansett. DUBLINSKY RIPS CANZONERI TO RIBBONS

By Murray Goodman

By Universal Service

Canzoneri, former lightweight champion of the world, fought like a champion for the first two rounds. His right left jab and his speedy footwork enabled him to peck away at Dublinsky's face [illegible]

But Dublinsky [illegible] after the second [illegible] Harry's leads.

Canzoneri became wild and Dublinsky [illegible] more easy target. He peppered his ribs and body with countless barrages of lefts and rights and Canzoneri was a very tired fighter as the sixth round [illegible]

The sixth was the climax round. Dublinsky, younger and faster, moved around the [illegible], outboxing him and keeping him off with long left jabs.

Marquard Sympathizes With Rowe as Latter's Streak Is Broken

By Dave Egan

Narragansett Park, Aug. 30—There was no end of hoss racing on the mid-week card here and [illegible] youngster named Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe.

THE "$11,000 LEMON"

"Rowe is pitching the second game for the Tigers," I told Marquard, who holds the Major League record of 19 consecutive victories, a score amassed in the year 1912, which is now in the dark ages, and never since equalled by a pitcher under the big tent.

"I'm glad I'm not in his shoes," said the retired rube. "The strain on that kid must be something awful. I was the $11,000 lemon back there in 1912. The Giants had paid that price for me—an unheard of investment in those days, especially when it concerned a southpaw pitcher."

"Their investment seemed to be in the ash-barrel, until I got back my own ex self-confidence, and started winning games. Each winning game put more pressure on me. Each one weighed me down mentally and physically, especially when I knew I had a new record in my left hand. I hope the schoolboy wins, but I pity him just the same."

Then came the message from [illegible] office:

"Let me keep that, will you?" asked Marquard, with the suspicion of a tremble in his left hand as he reached for the message. "I'm sorry for the boy, sorry that he didn't break the American League record. But in a way, I'm glad he didn't break mine."

"Ya know," he said. "It's a funny thing, life is and about all I have left is the record I set 22 years ago this summer. I'm glad it's still left to me."

"He had no chance to relax from the minute he arrived in Philadelphia until after the game was over.

"Just the thought of what my friends are planning for next Sunday makes me feel better," the Rab fairly shouted over the telephone this morning. "Five months is a long time to keep away from the game, especially in the summertime.

"But everything is fine now. The old leg is coming along nicely. The doctor pulls and mauls it, and he can't find a thing to worry about. It won't be long before I'll be able to take off the brace I'm wearing as a safety first idea.

"I've been using my left leg for the last three weeks. It's funny how I found out it was strong enough to hold up its share of the weight.

"I was shaving one morning when I started to lose my balance. There was nothing to do but use the left foot to save a fall and I was surprised and tickled to learn it held me up perfectly."

The original idea for a Maranville Day was born in the sports department of the Boston American and Sunday Advertiser.

Mr. Boston Says:—

Fairbanks on Racing Hits Fake Tipsters Should Be Barred

By Jack Conway

SHELDON Fairbanks, owner of 13 race horses and one of the leading sports promoters in the East, stood in front of the clubhouse at Narragansett Park as three horses fought for the advantage in the dash down the stretch.

"What do you think of the future of racing?" I asked.

"The tremendous crowds prove there is plenty of interest in the sport," replied Fairbanks. "This interest can be maintained if proper safeguards are taken to protect the racing game."

Mr. Boston

I asked Fairbanks what he considered the greatest menace to the future of racing.

"Fake tipsters and touts," he replied quickly. "Every race track in the country is filled with them. Unless the owners of the tracks get together and run the fake tipsters and touts out, they will find the attendance figures dropping off.

"Go to any race track in the country and you will find persons who can give you the 'inside' story on every race for a cash consideration. These persons are taking advantage of a public which is not entirely versed in racing.

"Some of the fake wire services, which get good money from hard working people, often send out five different winners in a five horse race.

"The system is quite simple. They pick one horse for Boston, another for Providence, a third for Lawrence, a fourth for Manchester, N. H., and a fifth for Portland, Me. Of course, they end up with a winner.

Bar Fake Tipsters

"Then there are the fellows who pretend to know the owners, trainers and jockeys. They give different winners to different people, and always create the impression the race is 'fixed.'

"I find the selectors for newspapers are honest when they try to call the turn at race tracks. They have personal pride in their own selections."

"How do you rate Dave Wilson, the handicapper for the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser?" I pressed.

"His best bet at Narragansett has won 80 per cent of the time," I went on. "If one played Wilson's best bet each day and refused to wager on any other race, he would be in the money."

"Few people make money betting," replied Fairbanks. "You had the right dope when you wrote nobody can beat the races. There are 50 reasons why any horse you may name will not win."

* * *

Praises Earl Porter

EARL PORTER passed along the track on his leg up on a 6 to 1 shot.

"Porter is the greatest jockey in the world," said Sheldon. "I used to have his contract. He is a fine boy and 100 per cent honest. He is a boost to racing."

* * *

"I think the New Deal will succeed," Fairbanks said. "It will be controlled by Boston people who know local situations.

"When I was general manager of the Garden, 80 per cent of the stock was owned by the New York Garden. We were run from New York. You know the result.

Fairbanks came closer to me. I thought he was going to give me a tip on the next race.

"We are awaiting one of those blessed events at our home," he whispered. "I hope it will be a jockey."

COURSE READY

COUNTRY CLUB AWAITS HORDE OF GOLFERS

By Bill Grimes

After that terrible layout they played a year ago in the outskirts of Cincinnati, qualifiers for the national amateur championship will appreciate The Country Club, where George T. Dunlap, Jr., starts the defense of his title one week from next Monday.

Whereby the championship at Kenwood was promoted for the purpose of financial return through the development of that section from country-wide publicity, The Country Club will be in the 'red' for thousands of dollars when the 1934 nationals wind up.

The Country Club has been preparing for this championship for at least two years. In fact, I believe its first step was taken when it voted to construct three nine-hole units, at a cost of more than $225,000.

PIERCE THE MAN

During the last two years, six of the Clyde greens have been rebuilt as have four of those in the inward nine of the championship layout. Cross bunkers have been taken out and new traps put in.

Thousands of dollars have been expended to clear up the rough which has been fine-toothed combed.

A year ago, The Country Club installed a watering system, and although it would be unfair to charge off the cost of that operation to the national championship there is no question that it was done, in no small measure in view of the coming classic.

Harold W. Pierce, who is chairman of the golf committee as well as treasurer of the United States Association, is the one person entitled to the credit for the excellent playing condition of course.

DIVOT DIGGERS APLENTY

Except for the month or five weeks he was abroad with the United States Walker Cup team last spring, Pierce has been "on the ball" every day for two years priming the course and making improvements on it.

He has spared no expense, and his suggestions as to changes were all carefully worked out before they were put into effect.

Since golf was in its infancy in this country The Country Club has rated among the outstanding courses. But it never began to approach—at this season of the year the condition it is in at present.

Qualifiers will start working out next Tuesday and, unless they resort to better judgment than usual the course will be well pockmarked when the championship gets underway.

Tommy McMillan in Scotch Soccer

Tommy McMillan, veteran performer, leads the list of soccer players who will cavort in Boston American League professional spangles in the seven-a-side competition with the powerful Thornton Victorias of Rhode Island, at the 45th annual Scotch picnic games at Caledonian Grove on Labor Day.

McMillan is followed by Gordon and Harry Burness, "Buck" O'Hare, James Ewen, Billy Green and Polly Guvda. The match is scheduled to start at 4:30 p. m.

Redskin Chiefs Enter 'Ace' Tournament

President George Marshall, Lone Star Dietz and Dennis Shea, the inner works of the pennant aspiring Boston Redskins' football team, have joined the ranks of the Boston Evening American's Hole-In-One procession.

Busy as they are at the Rosebud Gardens in Wayland, where they are whipping the Redskins into shape for the opening of the national professional league season, they still plan to take time out to test their skill and prowess with the legion of star and duffer golfers who have entered in the Franklin Park event which opens next Wednesday morning.

The fair sex have also rallied to the cause of the "ace."

Sally McGrath, one of Jamaica Plain's fairest daughters, and an outstanding and worthy golfer all the way from tee to green, not only has filed her own entry but those of several of her feminine playmates.

Sally states she is "especialy deadly on short holes and has been practising daily for the American's great annual event."

There are only a few more days before the tourney officially opens. Time is short so it would behoove prospective aces to send in their entries at once.

Once again we stress the fact that all are welcome, either man or woman, boy or girl. There is no entry fee.

Hole-in-One Entry Blank

Here you are, acers! Here's your entry blank for the Boston Evening American's hole-in-one golf tourney, to be held beginning Wednesday, September 5. Dub or star, anyone is eligible. Send your entry blank to the Golf Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston.

HER GOLD WILSON'S BEST BET

SMART SECOND TO OLD BALDY RECENTLY

The daughter of By Hisself and Gay Gold came from far back to finish second to Old Baldy last out. The added distance of this affair will suit her nicely, and she should experience little difficulty in reaching the winner's circle.

FIRST RACE

Early Dawn, Blind Praise, Court Gossip

EARLY DAWN is dropping considerable weight off his last race and looks as the probable winner of this affair. The H. P. Haley colorbearer was heavily backed in that race to defeat Cardiff[illegible] and that sort. He will have nothing as formidable as the latter to contend with in this affair. BLIND PRAISE has worked exceptionally well and would be dangerous if he would run to his trials. COURT GOSSIP has been close up at times and figures next best.

SECOND RACE

Merry Chatter, Vacillate, Chain

MERRY CHATTER has only to run back to her last race to be hard to beat [illegible] the wire. The Chatter filly was beaten only two lengths in that affair by Early Bay and Dornoch. VACILLATE [illegible] on her own [illegible] out. With a [illegible] rider aboard she may prove dangerous. CHAIN turned in a [illegible] and should experience little trouble in saving the short end of the spoils.

THIRD RACE

Unlawful, Strolling Miss, Teddy Carl

UNLAWFUL has been freshened up and is fit to run for a king's ransom. A repetition of any one of his good races this season would make him the winner. STROLLING MISS has received a couple of tighteners and should be ready for a first class effort. TEDDY CARL was never better and looks next best.

FOURTH RACE

Par Value, Cantersine, Old Baldy

PAR VALUE is as fit as hands can make him and should upset the highly fancied Cantersine in this affair. The latter finished less than three parts of a length in front of the top one in their last meeting. However, CANTERSINE has received considerable racing during the past week and may not be as good as he was then. OLD BALDY won his last with ease, but is picking up considerable weight off that race.

FIFTH RACE

My Boss, Traffic Judge, Red Badge

MY BOSS' debut over this course was in the nature of a tightener and may be thrown out. Prior to that effort at Saratoga she drubbed a similar field to this with ease. TRAFFIC JUDGE won his last at six furlongs and looms as the main danger in this affair. RED BADGE may hold on long enough to snare the minor award.

SIXTH RACE

Her Gold, Stepbrother, Blind Brook

HER GOLD needs only a smooth ride in order to grace the winner's circle. STEPBROTHER was off a bit slowly in his last and that effort may be thrown out. [illegible] BLIND BROOK is descending the scale and may share in the spoils.

SEVENTH RACE

Xandra, Syriac, Guiding Light

XANDRA strikes me as being the class in this affair. Last out she placed to [illegible]. Off that race, she should prove hard to down. SYRIAC is from a stable that is always [illegible] and next best. GUIDING LIGHT won his last from a [illegible] company but should have little trouble in holding the others safe.

BANK LETTER URGES SOUND ECONOMICS

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The current New England Letter, published by the First National Bank of Boston, over which the able Philip Stockton presides, presents a vest-pocket lesson in economics. In speaking of federal spending as a business stimulant the bank letter points out that no sustained progress can be made until there is assurance the budget will be balanced and that reasonable profits can be made by private enterprise. These objections, it seems to us, are reasonable and are recognized by Washington, since the remarks of Mr. Morgenthau, Mr. Richberg and Mr. Roper have lately tried to reassure business on both points. The letter goes on to define fair prices, saying they are determined by levels which move goods and not legislative action. No government has yet been able to increase the real income of people through price edicts or monetary manipulation.

Philip Stockton

The textile strike has moved out the realm of uncertaintythe Busine the realm of the uncertainty. Business generally must now face the hard fact that upwards of 500,0 0 workerse are wilfully walking the streets. The merits of either side are not for financial pages. But the result on trade is certainly a matter for us to ponder. The loss in buying power is but one factor. Just as important is the probable tax burden likely to result, for labor leaders have ever so frankly stated they expect aid from the public till, since the workers organizations are incapable of supplying strike relief support. These are both deflationary on business and the markets.

Notes: The willingness of liquors to firm up when the list is given the slightest encouragement, is suggestive of better things to come . . . But even though this is a cheering straw we will not be tempted until the all clear signal is given . . . And as yet we do not see it . . . In answer to an inquiry about Air Reduction on the upside . . . The issue did well in making a stride across 100 . . . If it holds 94-96 on this reaction we would buy it . . . Then a swing above 103 would indicate to us it was in the clear . . . With a new bull market high in the offing.

Many interesting studies have been made by students on the security of the so-called European gold bloc. One that comes to hand is from E. V. Jaeger of Redmond & Company. Mr. Jaeger predicts early abandonment on the basis of recent fluctuations in the international exchange markets. He sees this action as lifting the pressure against commodity prices and wages and feels that it will lead to a world wide inflationary movement, that will eventually have a stabilizing effect because it will make possible world wide stabilization.

Briefs: Release of American gold is mitigating the strain on the franc, belge and guilder but it is not substantially bolstering the position of the dollar . . . Because of the greater relative importance of the pound in international trade . . . Hence gold hoarding among nationals of the gold bloc is gathering momentum . . . The factors are derived from pressure against gold resulting from the weakness of sterling and distrust of the franc in its position to the dollar.

Our positions on the sidelines is unchanged. We watched a short rally, apparently of technical proportions, and now wait to see if the ensuing dip in prices holds above the low point of the July-August decline. Should this prove to be the case then the development of a bullish philosophy will be in the natural sequence of events. Until we are reassured by market action itself however, there is no intention of leaving the sidelines; although we feel a bull tip will be given.

Decline Fails to Bring Any Great Selling Volume

By WALL STREET SPECTATOR

The stock market has fallen back for the third successive time. While the decline was general, it failed to bring any great volume of selling and the averages are still above the lower limits of the recent trading range which is considered to be around 93.50 on the Dow, Jones figures.

Traders, however, are continuing their policy of "watchful waiting" having been fooled by the slow declines before only to find that after several days of inaction on the part of the market, the orderly retreat of prices turned into a general demoralized rout—viz. last month.

The selling, according to informed sources, was not of the best variety, being merely of the hit-and-run type.

While the average food stock has done as little as any group on the board in recent months, speculative interest is slowly turning to the group.

Issues such as Standard Brands, General Foods and National Biscuit have been relative laggards in the recent recovery movement.

With prices of food on the uptrend, though, profit margins should increase, provided inventories are reasonably large. In any event the recent tendency of buyers to stock up on can goods and other packaged goods will not hurt the group.

Third quarter liquor share earnings should make favorable reading.

Schenley net this quarter is expected to be in the neighborhood of $1.10 a share . . . National Distillers shouldn't do so badly either this quarter . . . Air Reduction may pass on $1.50 extra dividend to its stockholders before the end of the year . . .

United Gas Improvement will probably cut its payment to $1 annually from $1.20 currently . . .This would be quite a blow to United Corp. which holds 6,000,000 shares.

PRICES LOWER IN BOSTON

Stocks were generally lower in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange. Trading was quiet and price changes mostly confined to fractions.

Edison, Eastern Gas & Fuel preferred, Gillette, Pacific Mills, Swift & Company and United Shoe lost fractionally. Atchison fell more than a point.

New York, Aug. 30 (INS)—The cotton market was reactionary at the opening today, with the threat of a textile strike influencing heavy initial selling from wire houses, New Orleans and the south and carrying contracts down from 5 to 9 points.

October showed an opening decline of 5 points at 13.18. December was off at 13.28, January off 7 at 13.33, March off 7 at 13.38, May off 7 at 13.46 and July off 9 at 13.50.

No Saturday Work for U. S. Steel Help

New York, Aug. 30 (AP)—The United States Steel Corporation announced today that it will eliminate Saturday work for all salaried employes, which will involve a salary cut of practically 10 per cent, effective next September 1.

TRADE OUTLOOK FOR BOSTON UNCERTAIN

Although operations of cotton mills during the past month were somewhat below the corresponding period of last year, the mills were released on August 25 from the restriction requiring them to curtail 25 per cent, and it is expected that operations in many instances will be increased.

Not only is the government coming into the market for many millions of yards of cotton goods, but there is more call for finished cottons from other quarters. Advances by the mills of ⅛c to ¼c per yard, however, have tended to restrict buying to some extent. Cotton yarns still are quiet, without price change.

Some increase in interest has been noted in the wool market during the past week, but buyers still hesitate to make commitments. Sentiment, however, continues favorable and in some quarters slightly higher prices are expected.

Some sampling of mohairs is reported, and carpet wools are moderately active. The demand for wool tops is limited, but there has been a slight increase in the call for deliveries on orders already placed.

Although satisfactory arrangements have been made to take the surplus hides of the market, prices have turned lower and a substantial volume of hides have changed hands during the week. Many of the leading producers of shoes are marking down their prices slightly, particularly the men's line, which are from 5 to 10 per cent below previous quotations.

Massachusetts shoe production for the first six months of this year was off 2.8 per cent, as compared with the previous year. Some of the other New England States however, made a good gain, New Hampshire being up 12.4 per cent. Local tanners are purchasing only moderate amounts of raw hides, although sales of finished leather mills is slowing up to some extent.

Shipments of rayon yarns have been slight, though finished fabrics, as a rule, have been showing a fairly good sale. Production of silk thread and silk goods at the mills is slowing up, to some extent.

Building lumber is slow, and new orders for hardwoods are scarce. The heavier materials, going mostly into municipal projects, are moving in moderate volume, with comparatively little price change.

Retail sales during the current month have beeen well maintained, although, in some instances, these are running below last year's record. Furniture and general merchandise are making rather an unfavorable showing, while foodstuffs, restaurants, and drug stores report moderate gains.

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

Hornblower & Weeks—The inability of the market to support even a technical rally cannot be considered other than a sign of weakness. Therefore, where recent commitments have been based upon expectations that the current decline would not exceed technical proportions, we would not hesitate to limit losses now that a more serious setback is threatened.

Raymond Moley in "Today"—"Some of the responsibilities of organized labor might be mentioned specifically. They are: Continuity of work during a jurisdictional dispute; reasonable stability of organization during the life of a contract; public accounting of receipts and expenditures, notably expenditures."

Clark, Childs & Keech—The Sinclair victory in the California primaries is not a helpful development. The apparent preference of the electorate in various parts of the country for candidates with platforms based on little more than the fact that no one ever shot Santa Claus is discouraging.

E. A. Pierce & Co.—Near term seasonal business improvement has not yet been clearly indicated and, with labor difficulties again coming in for attention, some further market irregularity may be expected.

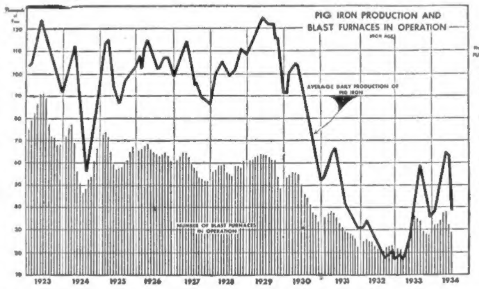
Pig Iron Production Studied



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE

This chart shows a comparison of blast furnaces in operation and average daily production of pig iron from 1923 to 1934. It may be noted that the number of furnaces as well as the output of pig iron dropped much further in later years than in the first period. This is due partly to the well-established fact that the current depression — which has not yet yielded altogether to the ministrations of the New Deal—is of far greater severity than that which followed the Great War.

Another factor which must be considered is the smaller part played in new steel production of virgin iron. As a country matures economically, an increasing proportion of new steel finds its origin in scrap which has resulted from the destruction of old buildings, or the abandonment of old equipment for new and better equipment. However, the production of pig iron still remains an important weather-vane of business.

The recent drop is due partly to the completion of Government orders or private orders that have been filled with the aid of Government funds, and also to the failure of private enterprise to make its long-awaited comeback in the capital goods field. Although Ickes reports that the PWA is finally in full swing, and spreading at a prodigious rate, the fact remains that the PWA projects have already contracted for steel and have had their orders filled. Furthermore, the funds appropriated for public works have already been entirely allotted, and most of them will be spent before the year is up.

In spite of the aid which the Government has given to the steel industry, the fact remains that its chief dependence is still upon private enterprise.

Live News of Today's Market Leaders

Possible explanation for the failure of rail stocks to respond to filing of the carriers' application for higher freight rates lies in the indications that their argument for an increase may bring out some grim and disagreeable facts.

These statistics may prove discouraging reading to investors in the transportation industry but at the same time it should be recognized that the picture may be painted darker than it actually is ing.

On pure mathematics the position of the railroads is such as to make imperative some method of relief but what the carriers need basically is more freight. Carloadings for weeks have hovered around the 600,000 car mark which they claim is too low to cover fixed charges even on the present basis of operating costs.

'Sound Money" Men More Comfortable

The "sound money" school is said to feel more comfortable because of the conviction that inflation talk will be suppressed until after the autumn financing is done.

One broker remarks that why they did not feel that way last month or two months ago for the same reason is beyond comprehension.

Brokers Planning Weekly Furloughs

Nearly every house has been operating under a one-month payless furlough for all employes throughout the Summer, equivalent to a 25 per cent wage cut, during this period. A new plan, it was learned yesterday, involving in several instances a further 25 per cent reduction in forces and one week off a month for the 75 per cent of the staff retained, will be inaugurated by a few firms commencing next week and continued until trading conditions require additional employment.

Bar Gold Higher

London, Aug. 30 (AP)—Bar gold advanced 10½ pence to 140s 3d (U. S. equivalent $35.30 on basis of sterling opening at $5.03⅝).

CASH PAYMENT IS DOUBTED

Some interpretations placed upon Secretary Morgenthau's radio speech raise the possibility that the Treasury might use part of its "reserve fund" debelief that this "reserve" on gold to pay the called Fourth Liberty 4¼s in cash.

Bankers scouted this theory yesterday. It is the belief that this "reserve fund" gives to the Treasury full control of the market for Government bonds. If the Treasury were to use as much as $1,200,000,000 for meeting its October maturity, the "reserve fund" would be reduced by so much that the Government would no longer have the control essential to its further financing of the New Deal.

Even the use of the "reserve fund" to meet the $525,000,000 one and a half per cent Treasury certificates due Sept. 15, (confidently forecast in some quarters) would bring about a surrender to some extent of the Government control of the Treasury bond market.

New Regulations Are Important to Our Local Banks

Roger Steffan, national director of modernization credit under the federal housing administration, speaking before the special conference of co-operative bank officers and Directors in New York city, stated that the regulations, under which co-operative and savings banks may have their modernization loans would be limited to those institutions which lend without mortgage.

This misapprehension has caused would-be borrowers much unnecessary inconvenience, leading them to seek accommodation through the federal housing administration's plan which they could have secured at less expense through their own local banks.

Delegates from the Massachusetts co-operative ranks attending the conference, included William G. Lord, president of the Athol Co-operative Bank; Ernest R. Eustis, treasurer of the Winchester Co-operative Bank; William R. Landers, treasurer of the Mattapan Co-operative Bank;; Charles G. Jordan, treasurer of the South Shore Co-operative Bank, Weymouth; Milton B. Wiggin, treasurer of the Wollaston Co-operative Bank; W. S. Pinkham and J. E. Granahan of the Wollaston Co-operative Bank; Raymond P. Harold, treasurer of the Worcester, Home and Equity Co-operative Banks, Worcester, and president of the Massachusetts Co-operative Bank League; Warner M. Allen, secretary of the Massachusetts Co-operative Bank League; Oscar F. Falling, treasurer of the Waltham Co-operative Bank; William B. Brigham, vice president of the Sharon Co-operative Bank; Frank A. Howard, treasurer of the Columbian Co-operative Bank of Cambridge; Lawrence H. Marston, treasurer of the Malden Co-operative Bank and vice-president of the Massachusetts Co-operative Bank League; Norman U. Armour, treasurer of the Salem Co-operative Bank; Milton A. Barrett, treasurer of the Fidelity Co-operative Bank of Fitchburg; and Herbert N. Faulkner, vice-president of the Federal Home Loan Bank, Boston.

Cotton Steady in Liverpool Market

Liverpool, Aug. 30 (INS)—There was a better demand for opening spots on the Liverpool cotton market today. Prices were steady. Receipts totaled 8000 bales, none of which was American.

At noon middling fair was 8.20d, strickly good middling 7.75d, good middling 7.45d, strictly middling 7.30d, middling 7.15d, strictly low middling 7.00d, low middling 6.80, strictly good ordinary 6.60d and good ordinary 6.30d.

Futures opened steady and at noon were a point below opening quotations while 1 point lower to 1 point higher than due prices. October opened at 6.92d, January 6.89d, March 6.90d and May 6.90d.

Stock Market Time Table

10-11 Prices worked narrowly lower in first-hour dealings. Metals were firm. Trading was dull with sales approximating 170,000 shares.

11-12 Stocks reacted to moderate selling pressure in the second hour. Rails were weak. Industrials generally lower. Sales amounted to 410,000 shares.

FAULTS OF 'NEW DEAL' SEEN AS MANY

By B. C. FORBES

As the elections approach, Washington spokesmen are filling the air and the newspapers with glowing accounts of what has been accomplished by the New Deal. Their statements have been most plausible.

B. C. Forbes

Alas, somebody has been unkind enough to gather and publish throughout the country the cold facts concerning the number of families and individuals receiving relief today as compared with a year ago. The painful and regrettable truth is that relief rolls are longer than ever before. Also warnings are general that the ranks of the abjectly needy will be seriously swelled this winter.

Such stern facts and figures cannot be laughed off.

The deduction is forced that the new deal is not working ideally, that recovery is faltering, that confidence is not being built up satisfactorily.

Ten? Twenty? Thirty? No, Eighty!

Its head tells me that it is becoming impossible for executives to concentrate sufficiently upon doing their jobs, because of the constant distraction injected by code problems.

It was high time that Washington reached the conclusion that reduction and simplification of codes have become urgently necessary. Not even a chameleon could satisfy eighty masters.

Maybe this statement made to me in conversation by a wealthy entrepreneur who used to risk putting capital into various new inventions, new products, new enterprises, may throw light on why employment isn't reviving briskly and why more and more people are compelled to subsist on public relief!

"My losses have been so heavy that I have no heart to attempt to make money, as I used to, by putting capital into what looked like promising projects. The cards are now stacked against me.

"Taxes on profits, income taxes and other taxes have become so heavy that it would take a super-genius, which I am not, to come out ahead of the game. Suppose I finance an enterprise which proves profitable; the government not only exacts almost 14 per cent of the company's profits in the form of a corporation tax, but soaks me over half of my income.

"But can I offset lesses against gains? I cannot.

"It has practically become a case of the government's decreeing, 'heads I win; tails you lose.'

RAILS WEAK AS SHARES WORK LOWER

New York, Aug. 30—Disturbed by the European currency war, the stock market worked lower again today with losses running to a point in many instances.

Railroad shares were again the weak spots with Atchison, New York Central, Southern Railway and Lackawanna suffering losses running to more than a point.

METALS STEADY

Motor shares including General Motors and Chrysler were offered freely, but losses were held to small fractions.

Steel shares were quiet and somewhat easier and in no way reflected the action of the United States Steel Corp. in cutting salaries 10 per cent and at the same time placing its salaried employes on a 5-day week.

POUND WEAK

Financial interest shifted toward foreign exchanges as the British pound fell to new low levels in terms of the French franc and the open market price for gold in London rose to a record high.

The pound continued weak against the dollar. Foreign exchange traders conjectured that the British authorities, after supporting sterling for months had stepped aside to allow sterling to return to its old parity of around 4.86 against the dollar.

The price of gold was fixed in London at 140 shillings three pence an ounce compared with 139 shillings at 4½ pence yesterday. The previous peak, established last February 5, was 140s.

Strength in the franc against sterling and other exchanges, including the dollar, enabled the Bank of France to continue its heavy takings of gold. The weekly statement of the Bank of France showed a further increase of 442,000,000 francs in gold reserves. Its total gold holdings were not far from the record.

Some monetary students feared a further sharp fall in sterling might exercise a deflationary effect upon domestic prices but so far no such results were visible. The Moody Index of spot commodity prices has continued its advance to new highs for the recovery period.

Sterling opened at $5.03, off ⅛ of a cent and a new low for the current decline. The franc dipped .00 of a cent to 6.69¼ cents.

STUDY OF WATER WORKS BONDS

A booklet, "The Same Income 929 and 1934," discussing the water works industry, with special reference to the income stability of water works bonds has just been prepared by Swart, Brent & Co., Inc.

A study of the securities of all private water works companies in the United States that have a fund debt of $1,000,000 or more, has also been made, and shows that all bonds of such companies are currently paying the same income as in 1929.

The study indicates that gross revenues of the same group of 60 companies declined only 2.56 per cent from 1930 to 1931, 2.64 per cent from 1931 to 1932; and 2.61 per cent from 1932 to 1933.

The combined net income of the water works group, available for fixed charges, declined only 38 per cent between 1931 and 1933. As compared with this, the net earnings of a group of 22 electric and gas companies, as compiled by Standard Statistics, declined 18.03 per cent in the same period. Net earnings of 25 leading rails combined as indicated by the same authority, showed a decline of 16.38 per cent in the two years period.

Atlantic Gulf Reports Net Loss

Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies S. S. Lines and subsidiaries report for six months ended June 30, 1934, net loss of $278,305 after depreciation, taxes, interest and rentals. This compares with net income of $587,49, equivalent, after allowing for dividend requirements on the 5 per cent non-cumulative preferred stock, to $2.25 a share on the 150,00 shares of no-par common stock in the first half of 1933.

For quarter ended June 30, last, net loss was $399,327 after taxes and charges, against net income of 121,22, or $1.21 a share on 99,700 shares of preferred stock, in the preceding quarter and net income of $264,387, or 93 cents a share on the common, in the June quarter of the previous year.

Art Metal Reports Gain in Earnings

Art Metal Construction Co. and its subsidiary, Post Index Co., Inc., report for quarter ended June 30, 1934, net profit of $19,915 after taxes, charges, etc., equal to seven cents a share on 285,550 shares of 10 par capital stock which were outstanding on Dec. 31, 1933, excluding 35,020 shares held by the company.

This compares with net profit of 7369, or two cents a share, in the preceding quarter and net loss of 1,133 in the June quarter of the previous year.

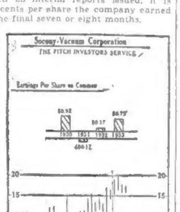
Socony-Vacuum Corp. In Good Position

Analysis Prepared by the Fitch Investors' Service

While there have been no interim reports issued, it is fairly certain the entire 7 cents per share the company earned during 1933 was made in the final seven or eight months.



On this basis, and granted the assumption that the generally favorable state of conditions prevailing within the industry during the latter half of 1933 will continue throughout the current year, results for 1934 can reasonably be expected to approach $1.20 per share.

Then, too, the proposed elimination of $228,123,581 in capital should should result in depreciation savings equivalent to approximately 30 cents per common share. Some liberalization of the current dividend rate could easily result therefrom.

Of course, progress of the company, which is international in scope and character, cannot be adjudged entirely by conditions within the United States. However, so far as the extensive Far East properties are concerned, the merger of these with Standard Oil of New Jersey toward the close of 1933 should be reflected favorably in this year's operating results.

With the scheduled opening of the Iraq field not expected to have any serious effect and with the domestic market apparently well under federal suprevision, there seems little room for any upsetting development of importance.

WORLD-WIDE MARKETING FACILITIES

The Standard Oil Company operates directly two New York and one Rhode Island refineries, with daily crude oil capacity of 34,000 barrels, and markets its products through over 30,000 dealers in New York and the New England States and 3000 foreign distributing stations in the Near and Far East and South Africa. Vacuum Oil specializes in high-grade lubricating oils, its trade-marked oils being "Gargoyle" and "Mobiloil."

Company controls extensive marketing facilities in several Eastern and Middle Western States and is represented in all foreign countries except Russia through branches or locally incorporated Vacuum Oil companies. Foreign sales comprise one-third of gross business and about 40 per cent in dollar value. Also markets kerosene and gasoline in important foreign countries.

FINANCIAL POSITION VERY STRONG

Capitalization is represented by funded debt, long term (including subsidiaries), totalling $83,313,000 and outstanding common stock (par $25) of 30,905,006 shares. (Also 803,452 shares held in treasury). Financial condition as of December 31, 1933, was strong, with cash and marketable securities alone twice total current liabilities of $30,559,000.

As in the case of most oil companies, recent years have not been very profitable. In 1933 a profit of $0.73 a common share was reported, in 1933 a profit of $0.17, in 1931 a deficit of $0.17, in 1930 a profit of $0.92 and in 1929 a profit of $2.23, earnings of last two years being those of the predecessor company, Standard Oil Company of New York.

FRISBY GOES RIGHT TO TOWN IN BARBER'S CHAIR

By HORACE W. FRISBY

"How clear you make everything," a little manicurist friend of mine said the other day as she finished my nails and gave a final pat to my firm, strong hands. Her remark set me thinking as I reclined there in the barber's chair, relaxed and feeling fit to grapple with the nation's problems. I had made everything clear to the little manicurist and, indeed, everything was clear to me.

Invigorated by a leisurely exchange of ideas with those of my admirers who had followed me in and were now awaiting the attentions of the tonsorial craftsman in charge, I felt in the mood to legislate. And suddenly it occurred to me why I felt in the mood to legislate. The barber shop atmosphere: calm, relaxed, level-headed, keen, philosophical but nevertheless alert! How often, I sighed to myself, had I not heard the problems that beset our nation so neatly solved in these havens of horse-sense. How unlike the halls of Congress, full of hurry, bustle, ill-will and partisan politics! Could we surmount the present crisis I asked myself, if our legislators felt as I felt at that moment: really in the mood to legislate, seeing things clear and seeing them whole? Yes, indeed, I answered.

Well, folks, for a small installation charge, plus $1 a month for some time to come, I'll be willing to furnish the government these jim-dandy chairs with sliding foot-rest and adjustable back. Install one of them for each and every representative of the people, and you'll see a different bunch of laws passed in this country! And if any of the gentlemen want a shave as well, Frisby knows the telephone numbers of a few lady barbers who are not bad. Not bad a-toll!

Suffolk Taxpayers' Burden Is Heavy

ONE of the worst evils of the county system in Massachusetts is the manner in which it has loaded almost the full burden of the administration of justice in the state on the shoulders of the taxpayer of Suffolk County.

The layman does not pause often enough to realize that there is no State Supreme Court in this Commonwealth in the same sense that such courts exist in other states. The functions of the highest court of appeal in Massachusetts are vested in the full bench of the Suffolk County Supreme Judicial Court.

That court hears appeals from all other sections of the state. And this county pays the bill. The only contribution, other than the salaries of state-appointed judges, came when the Commonwealth generously paid one-third of the cost of enlarging the court house in Pemberton square.

But never has the state at large paid a red cent for maintenance, heating, the salaries of court officers, clerks and so on. And these costs are a staggering part of the Boston taxpayer's bill each year.

This is perhaps the biggest load that the county rings have managed to saddle on Boston, but it is not the only load. Even if we confine ourselves only to the matter of the courts, we find that Boston pays the bill for ALL courts in Chelsea and Winthrop.

This is, of course, just one more of the long list of reasons why our county machinery must be revamped. Until that is done there can be no justice for the Boston taxpayer.

Firearms in Boston

At least, that is one conclusion that may be drawn from the fact that not one return has been received by the Collector of Internal Revenue here under the terms of the new National Firearms Act, which provides for the REGISTRATION and taxation of all manufacturers and dealers in such weapons.

Passed by Congress last June and effective August 10, this measure can hardly be regarded as one to add materially to the revenue of the government. The taxes are nominal ones.

The important feature of the law is that it should provide an accurate record of all transfers of firearms. It places a tax even on the transfer of such weapons by individuals who are not makers, but sellers or pawnbrokers.

In this respect it is a powerful weapon against crime. It is one more move to take away the gangster's gun—without which he is tame enough.

But are we to believe that these weapons are NOT for sale in Boston? A walk through certain sections of the city will quickly eliminate that thought.

Are the dealers in these weapons—the armorers of the underworld, then defying the federal government?

It is to be hoped that the Department of Justice—that has made short work of the Dillingers—will teach these gentlemen a lesson.

A President An 'A. B.'

Time was when college boys used to work their way to Europe on cattle boats, but there have been no instances of a college president shipping before the mast as an able seaman until Dr. Frederick B. Robinson, head of City College, New York, made the experiment this Summer.

The doctor did it for fun and came back well satisfied with the lot of a fo'csle hand.

Perhaps he received more consideration than a youngster would have, but he had no tales to tell of hard-fisted masters and bucko mates, of salt-horse and bad biscuit, nor of the other conventional hardships of life afloat.

He had a swell time getting his degree of "A. B."

Incidentally, the good doctor probably acquired more real learning in his brief aquatic career than he could have in a much longer time in his presidential chair.

If every white-collar man had to handle a pick and shovel for a few weeks a year, if every captain of industry had to do an occasional hitch in the ranks, if every Brain-Truster at Washington had to earn his living for a time with his hands instead of his mouth—this might be a more perfect world than it is.

It would deflate many an "educated" man's ego to see how helpless he could be in a job he had considered beneath him. Deflation of the ego is one thing most colleges don't teach.

Reds and Textiles

Communists hover over American labor disputes like vultures. They are always ready to pounce and make the strikers' cause their cause.

In this they have a two-fold purpose. They seek to gain converts in the ranks of labor. And they hope to wreck the capitalist system that is so obnoxious to them.

Usually they succeed only in discrediting the cause of the strikers—a cause that often enough is not unjust. However, once it is tarred by the Red brush, the public becomes suspicious and antagonistic.

The Communists have run up the Red flag with the Hammer and the Sickle on the New England textile front. They are doing everything to make this strike inevitable, so that once more they will have an opportunity to further their own ends.

The mill workers of New England, however, are fortunate that their leaders are conservative American Federation of Labor men.

Those who strike will be wise to follow that leadership, rather than the Moscow-inspired kind.

Smart Yankee Farming

Famous old Aroostook County up in Maine promises to become something more than the largest potato patch in the United States. And good news it is, too, for it means increased prosperity as well as stability of income for the farmers of that great section.

Under the leadership of H. E. Rutland, special freight agent of the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad, the farmers of Aroostook County undertook to experiment with other products to which their land might be adapted.

The result: Recently a carload of iceberg lettuce and a carload of market peas were shipped to the Boston market. In quality and price they rivalled the same products which Boston dealers have always depended on for western farmers to supply.

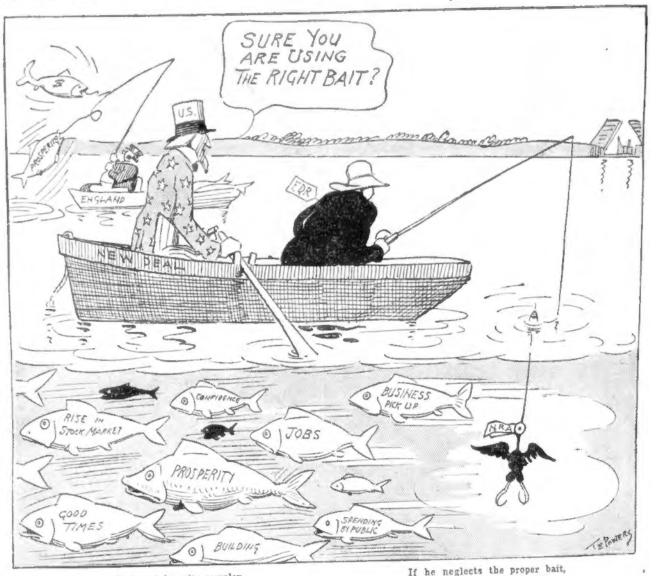
The effect should be increased business for the forward looking railroad which furthered the farming experiment. And increased revenue for the farmers who had the pioneering pluck to cast about for ways to better their lot.

Who dares question the Yankee sagacity of these Northern New Englanders whose efforts mean a busier, happier New England?

No Bites:—

Eagles Scare the Fish

By T. E. Powers



The angler's art is quite complex,
There's more to do than wait.
He has to pick the time and place
And also tempting bait!

If he neglects the proper bait,
His hook no fish will lure.
Beware, then, if you angling go,
And of your bait make sure!

Listen, World! -:- By Elsie Robinson

You don't like conceited people. They get your goat. You don't know how to get along with them, do you? Maybe this will help. It's a tip to salesmen that I found in an old trade journal—

Elsie Robinson

"Remember that the other fellow firmly believes in himself and that:

"His religion is just a little better than the one you have.

Cynical stuff? Yes, I know, it sounds like it. You'd hate to have to sell a bill of goods—or be sold one on a line like that.

All right—but suppose you read those tips over again. There they are—eight expressions of that human ego which disgusts you so when you run up against it in the other fellow.

But how about running up against it in yourself? Is there any one of those expressions which doesn't also apply to you?

Don't you, too, believe that your possessions and your philosophy of life are better than the next man's? Don't you, in spite of all your seeming humility and good sportsmanship, seek to believe that you can outsmart the average human? Of course you do.

And what would happen to you if you didn't? What would happen to any of us?

You dislike egotism. You hate it in your neighbor and are secretly ashamed of it in yourself. Yet isn't every worthwhile human accomplishment based on egotism?

And wouldn't we all get ahead much faster and work together much more happily if we'd respect and cooperate with ego instead of sneering at it?

We say, "That fellow's awfully egotistical; he's in love with himself." But that doesn't follow. Being egotistical and being in love with one's self are two entirely different things. We're all egotistical.

But we aren't all in love with ourselves. We're in love with someone the world has never seen—with much braver, finer, smarter persons than those poor creatures whom the neighbors call by our names.

WHAT IS "EGO"?

Ego is the deepest thing there is in any human's spirit—the very core of his character.

It is the thing around which every ambition centers, upon which every act is based.

EGO IS ALL THAT A MAN KNOWS OF GOD—ALL THAT HE DREAMS OF GOD.

You know that is true about yourself. You know that, no matter how low you might sink in the eyes of the world, there would still be something true and strong within you—something untouched by your cowardice and cussedness—something worth believing in and fighting for.

Always you have felt this about yourself—that you were better than you seemed.

And you have felt hurt and angered at other people because they would not believe in this finer you and give it a hand.

THERE'S THE TRUTH

There's the truth about YOUR ego. But it's also the truth about that ego which you find so puzzling and unpleasant in the Other Man and the Other Woman.

They, too, have secret, finer selves, and are better people than they seem. And when they strut about their achievements or boast about their possessions or repeat silly compliments that have been paid them they aren't really interested in proving to you that they have a better "safety razor" or a prettier instep.

They're not just showing off. They're asking your help . . . your faith. They're showing you, timidly, the hidden hunger and beauty that lies close to their hearts.

You don't like conceited people? You don't know how to get along with them? Believe in them—that's how.

Where Money Goes -:- -:- By Winifred Black

Linda had a romantic mother, so her real name is Linda de Chaminix—or how do you spell it, anyhow? But most people call her Linda, and some of them even call her Lindy Lou, which is rather a come down, isn't it?

Winifred Black

"Everybody used to have plenty of money," she says, "and now nobody has any. I always used to keep a certain amount of ready money in the house, and took some of it with me when I went down town shopping—even window shopping, just in case, don't you know?

"And if I happened to run out I just stepped into the bank and signed a check, and the cashier just said: 'Certainly, Mrs. Brown', and handed me the money, and smiled, and spoke of the weather we were having. And he was a very good-looking fellow, too, that cashier. Really, sometimes I thought if I hadn't been married, and Tom so good and all—

"WHO'S GOT IT ALL?"

"But anyhow, this money business is getting on my nerves. I can't seem to get hold of any anywhere, any more.

"Who's got it all, do you suppose, and where have they put it? Money doesn't just vanish like that, does it?"

And then Linda's Tom spoke up—for once.

"Yes, Linda, my dear," said Linda's Tom, "that's just what money does; it vanishes. Why, even the Bible tells you that. What's that thing about money taking unto itself wings? Don't you remember?"

"Well, anyhow, there's that stock that I bought at a hundred and ten, and it went down to seventy, and then to fifty, and then to nothing at all. I didn't lose the money. It just wasn't there.

"And then the house I built for thirty thousand dollars. I sort of talked around among real estate friends the other day, and they said I'd be lucky if I could get ten thousand for it.

"What's happened to the other twenty thousand dollars? Why, search me!"

"The real estate people—the ones who built the house for us—they must have that $30,000 of yours," said Linda. "Can't you get it back from them, some way?"

Linda's Tom laughed ruefully.

"I saw Dick Gloster the other day," he said. "He sold me the house, you know, but he didn't look particularly rich himself. As a matter of fact, he can't pay the mortgage on his own home, and he's afraid he's going to lose it."

JUST A HEADACHE

"I'll tell you," said Linda, her eyes suddenly brightening in an entrancing way they have; "I'll tell you where all the money is. The bankers have go it. If you could just get hold of one of them, and simply shake the money out of his pockets!"

"Well," said Linda's Tom, "maybe I could do that some day, but I'd be afraid I might shake some of old Aunt Lucy's money out of his pockets. I wouldn't want to do that, would I? Aunt Lucy has her money in the same bank as I have, you know, and it isn't all their own money the bankers have locked up in the vault and all that sort of thing. You must remember that, Linda Lou."

"I think I'll make some fudge," said Linda. "My head just aches and aches. It always does when I try to think it all out about the money."

"Sure, dear," said Linda's Tom.

The fudge turned out very well, and Tom seemed to enjoy it as well as Linda. So there was no harm in the discussion, was there?

IN SPITE OF SHORTCOMINGS

In spite of all my blunders and the silly things I do,
And in spite of all the folly I display;
Though I never put a thing away when using it I'm through,
And I cause her needless trouble every day;
Though I'm heedless and I'm careless, and where my pajamas fall,
For her to come and find them there they lie,
My Nellie never grumbles, but stays patient through it all,
And sometimes myself I stop and wonder why.

Notwithstanding that she's struggled now for eight and twenty years
To teach me how a husband should behave,
And despite her lovely labors, still no betterment appears,
I still leave the washstand messy when I shave,
I still leave discarded linen on the chairs and on the floor,
And I never hang my coat up as I should;
But she's promised to look after me for twenty-eight years more,

I'm the sort of fellow women wouldn't want about the place,
And when anything needs fixing, I am useless on the case,
Patient Nellie has to do the job herself.
I'd have thought she would have chucked me in the discard years ago,

Human Side of the News; Sights at Saratoga

By Edwin C. Hill

Off and on, for many years, I have known Dead-Pan Louie as one profitably engaged in jug-handled enterprise around race tracks—some of it mildly felonious, as I have been led to believe by Louie himself.

There seems to be little hazard in his ventures, as he is always in funds, always expensively and fashionably tailored, always with a loose string on his fat bankroll.

Between manicures, he could be found in any of the better appointed bars, bland and munificent, contemptuous of small change. He was an epicure, too, ordering fastidiously but with a careless grandeur in restaurants where such unconcern would have been ruinous to the common man.

IN SHARKSKIN SUITS

At Saratoga I saw Louie on the street, with three others like him—nice sharkskin suits, Malacca sticks, seemly haberdashery, all freshly massaged and fit as a quarter horse, and conversing inscrutably out of one side of the mouth about somebody "taking it on the lam when this guy gives the sap a tumble about the ringer," and "Skeets figures' he'd have to take the rap"—and so on.

I was about to hail Louie when the four of them turned into an open door. It was the Janice Meredith Colonial Tea Shoppe, done up with chintz and doilies and bouquets of zinnias. I followed them in. They were ordering orange juice and toasted cheese sandwiches!

I wandered out in a daze, and, chasing the will-o-the-wisp of an idea, hastened to the old basement bar of the United States Hotel, where, in days long gone, Louie had gloried and drunk deep.

Hopped up for its brief summer run, the old hotel-grandiose, liverish-colored hang-over from the General Grant days—has reopened the old bar, just as it used to be, soaped mirrors, Lime Kiln prints and all.

There wasn't a racy-looking gent in the place. Rather, there was a bevy of middle-aged women, some of whom, at great labor and expense, I definitely and positively identified, as Montclair and Mamaroneck matrons. They were drinking cocktails and talking a track lingo quite unintelligible to these untutored ears.

And so it was all around town, as I pursued my researches. The "hard guys" played the fetching little tea shoppes and the diet kitchens, and the women, who in Tod Sloan's day would have been going to Browning clubs, were hitting the hard stuff and calling the bartender by his first name.

Which drove out the other from his accustomed haunts? Perhaps nothing short of another federal survey could settle that, but the fact is that things around this lovely old track, with the placid swans still there in the lake, are getting as mixed-up as a bowl of chop suey.

In the stands, I saw a quietly dressed, comely, gray-haired woman, suburban, one would have said, talking with a pretty girl, apparently her daughter, who might have been a college girl. A half hour later, down in the paddock, the matron approached a bookie, near where I was standing.

She had had some dealings with this personage and something had gone amiss. And then the lady from Bryn Mawr, or wherever it was, just naturally tore the bookie's head off, in a line of track argot which would have left any old railbird at the post.

"I don't get these dames," said the bookie afterward. No more do I. As the bookie puts it, they look like Jane Addams and talk like Pittsburgh Phil.

My friends bear me out in the observation that never before have the track crowds included so large a proportion of women; that there are more elderly or middle-aged and fewer young people; that they are from an upper middle-class stratum new to the races.

But the puzzling thing is that they are as full of real racing dope as an old sheep dog is full of cockle burrs, and still more astonishing is the fact that the are not four-bitters. Very si able plasters they were whic the ladies from the stands or th club house whammed down on this skate or that.

CHEERING DECOROUS

It seemed to me that the crowds didn't warm up the way they used to. Somehow there are a lot in non-conductors of emotion these new race crowds. Figure a nose finish as the boys hand-ride em home, with your horse just about lip distance ahead as he goes under the wire, and if you don't let out a yip or two you'd better have the doctor test your reflexes. But this seminar takes it all calmly.

There is a little decorous cheering, but that is all. Is it because the professors are running America, or what is it?

Jim Leahy, an old time breeder, wise and sagacious, whom I have encountered at Chicago, New Orleans, Havre de Grace and Belmont for many year tells me that repeal and depre sion together, and open bookin in New York, have shaken thing up a lot.

"Don't be fooled by these women talking as if they knew something about horse races," he said. "They are just a new crow of women who ordinarily wou be playing bridge, who have little loose money.

"If you watched any of the bi auction bridge games around the hotels the last few years, you saw how the women were getting broken in to gambling. Prohibition, of course, conditioned them to drinking. Take it all in all, the big city upper middle class has been changed a whole lot in the last ten years, and that is what you are seeing at the track.

"You don't see so many young people out, because they haven't the money or the jobs they used to have. As to the open booking, it has eliminated from all the tracks a lot of guys who were so crooked they used to rob their own trunks. Things have been shifted around and opened up generally, and, take it all in all, I think it's all to the good. This is one of the best governed tracks in the world, and I'm not shedding any tears over the disappearance of the big, shifty mob which used to make color for you writing guys."

At that, the old town has changed. Wealthy owners used to come up for the summer, open up one of those stately old mansions on the road to the track, bring a string of driving and riding horses, as well as race horses, stage big doings at the stupendous old hotels, and, altogether, kick up an excitement and a fanfare long to be remembered.

Congress Failed in Duty to Restore National Defense

By James T. Williams, Jr.

When President Roosevelt reviewed the corps of cadets at West Point the other day it was this first time since 1922 that the United States Military Academy had been visited by the President of the United States who is also the commander-in-chief of the army and navy.

During the twelve years that have come and gone between the visit of President Harding to West Point and the visit of President Roosevelt a few days ago, the Congress of the United States has failed to provide for the maintenance of an army strong enough to perform even its peace-time missions.

PRAISE FOR REGULAR ARMY

These are to provide a national police force, to guard our overseas possessions and to train the organized reserves and other civilian components of the army of the United States. In addition to these military missions the army is called upon to perform even in ordinary times many civil missions and the number of these has been tremendously increased during the national emergency created by the depression.

To the regular army is chiefly due the splendid success of the Civilian Conservation Corps. Its camps were organized and commanded in the beginning by officers of the regular army who for the most part have since been replaced by reserve officers trained by the regular army.

The army supplies the camps, provides transportation for men and supplies and is responsible for the maintenance of discipline and for the morale which depends upon discipline while the men are in camp.

In most of the emergency relief agencies set up since the Roosevelt administration entered power officers of the regular army have been drafted for the most important work. Meantime, the vast increase in public works, including rivers and harbors, has added greatly to the work of the corps of engineers of the regular army. In spite of these manifold duties imposed upon the regular army and the organized reserves, Congress, since the great war ended, has persisted in starving the military establishment.

BELOW PEACE STRENGTH

It is far below the peace-time strength which Congress authorized for the army in the National Defense Act. It's every branch lacks modern equipment. Its reserves supplies of all sorts are badly depleted.

As a result of 12 years of neglect by the Congress, the combat strength of our regular army today is about the size of the Greek army—ranking 17th among the armies of the world. The problem of national defense ought to be the first thought of government because liberty and justice, "the breath of liberty's being," depend upon "the common defense."

Only in recent months have the American people begun to realize how seriously their national defense has been weakened by the neglect its military establishment has suffered at the hands of Congress during the last 12 years. President Roosevelt's visit to West Point, his review of the corps cadets and the interest he manifested as commander-in-chief in the army will hearten regulars and reserves alike.

UP TO CONGRESS

It encourages the hope that under his leadership the new Congress will be aroused to urgent necessity of discharging its constitutional obligation to provide for the national defense, not only by building up the navy to treaty strength but by building up the army in its every branch to th strength authorized by th tional defense act and d by the dictates of comm
